$1.4 Million Courthouse Renovation

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON

In order "to save the taxpayers of Ulster County more than $1 million" for a new court house, the county building committee will ask the Ulster County Legislature Oct. 7 to approve the rehabilitation of the present courthouse and jail on Wall Street in Kingston.

Planning to use revenue sharing funds in the amount of about $613,000, the committee will ask the board to approve architectural plans for the rehabilitation of the court house complex which it is estimated will cost about $1.4 million.

It had been suggested by some legislators that a new court house be built on Golden Hill where other county facilities are now housed including the jail and infirmary but many favor keeping the court house in uptown Kingston where it will benefit business there.

Legislator Robert H. Kuhlmann (R-Dist. 7), chairman of the Building Committee, in a report made at a recent executive session of the county board, explained that the county has recently installed a new roof, spent $172,000 for the rehabilitation of the district attorney's wing of the court house and has a substantial investment in support facilities such as parking, water and sewers which would have to be duplicated should an entirely new facility be built.

Legislature sets vote on welfare aid to dependent children. Story page 35.

Kuhlmann, in addition to citing the fact that the old court house is listed in the National Historic Registry, said it is an exceptionally beautiful building. "It must be preserved and maintained under any circumstances," he said, adding that "compared with the former Kingston City Hall, to not maintain the court house would be like jumping from the frying pan into the fire."

Kuhlmann explained that the court house and former jail "can well serve the public's long term needs." He said the architect's plans call for two new courts, a proper law library, a new juror's waiting room to replace the present "squalid" room in the court house basement and necessary support facilities including offices, consultation rooms, heating, and air conditioning.

Kuhlmann noted that the courts are well located to serve the public, and have parking and all necessary public services such as water, sewer and public transportation.

"If more space is needed beyond the next 15 to 20 years, there is room on the site for additions. It can therefore very well serve our long term judicial needs," he said.

Pointing to the fact that Kingston is the county seat, Kuhlmann said millions of dollars have been spent to improve the uptown area and numerous offices, restaurants, and shops are in large measure supported by the county courts.

"To remove the courts from the heart of the city and county would cause irreparable harm to the economic well being of this community," he said.

The legislature, which meets in regular session Tuesday, Oct. 7 instead of the previously announced date of Oct. 9, will consider the proposal at its 8 p.m. session in the county office building. It will however meet at 3 p.m. in executive session to consider options to the architect's plans including pointing of the stone on the exterior of the present court house and the installation of a sprinkler system.

Ford Continues Midwest Tour With Cordon of Bodyguards

CHICAGO (UPI) — Traveling through the Midwest with a cordon of bodyguards, President Ford says he hopes to visit all of the 50 states by the end of the year, but will not be "foolhardy" about security precautions.

Ford has 11 more states to go to make it an even 50 by the end of the year, and already is scheduled to visit three by next Tuesday. He will be the honorary grand marshal in the mountain festival parade in Elkins, W.Va., on Saturday and also appear at a fund-raising dinner in Newark, N.J., that evening.

On Tuesday he will fly to Knoxville, Tenn., to speak at a White House conference on energy and economic policy.

The remaining states Ford expects to visit by next January are Alabama, Delaware, Hawaii, Idaho, Mississippi, New Mexico, North Dakota and Wyoming.

He told a Republican fundraising gathering in Chicago Tuesday evening he has already visited 38 states — one fewer than his aides said he actually has toured.

Meanwhile, in Skokie, members of a heavy police guard protecting Ford seized a man loitering outside Ford's hotel, searched him and whisked him away in a police car.

Officers said he was taken into custody when he refused an order to take his hands out of his pockets. White House press officer Ron Nessen said a short time after the incident, however, that the man was not armed, that he presented no threat to the President, and the Secret Service had no interest in him.

See editorial on page 6.
Related story on page 44.

The man was identified as Thomas Weber of Skokie. He had been standing in front of the hotel with his hands in his pockets, and a Skokie police sergeant and a Secret Service agent, told him that if he were going to stay there he would have to remove his hands from his pockets. The sergeant said the man refused and struck him.

But despite a drastic tightening of his own security, Ford appeared to be determined not to be dissuaded from future travel, although there has been some urging that he "cool it" in view of two attempts on his life in California last month.

"I have been going around this great country trying to talk straight to the American people," Ford said at the $125-a-plate Republican fund-raising dinner at the Conrad Hilton Hotel. "I have also done a lot of listening."

"If I were an orator perhaps I could say more eloquently what I foresee for America," he said, "and if I were a poet, perhaps I could sum up more movingly what I hear."

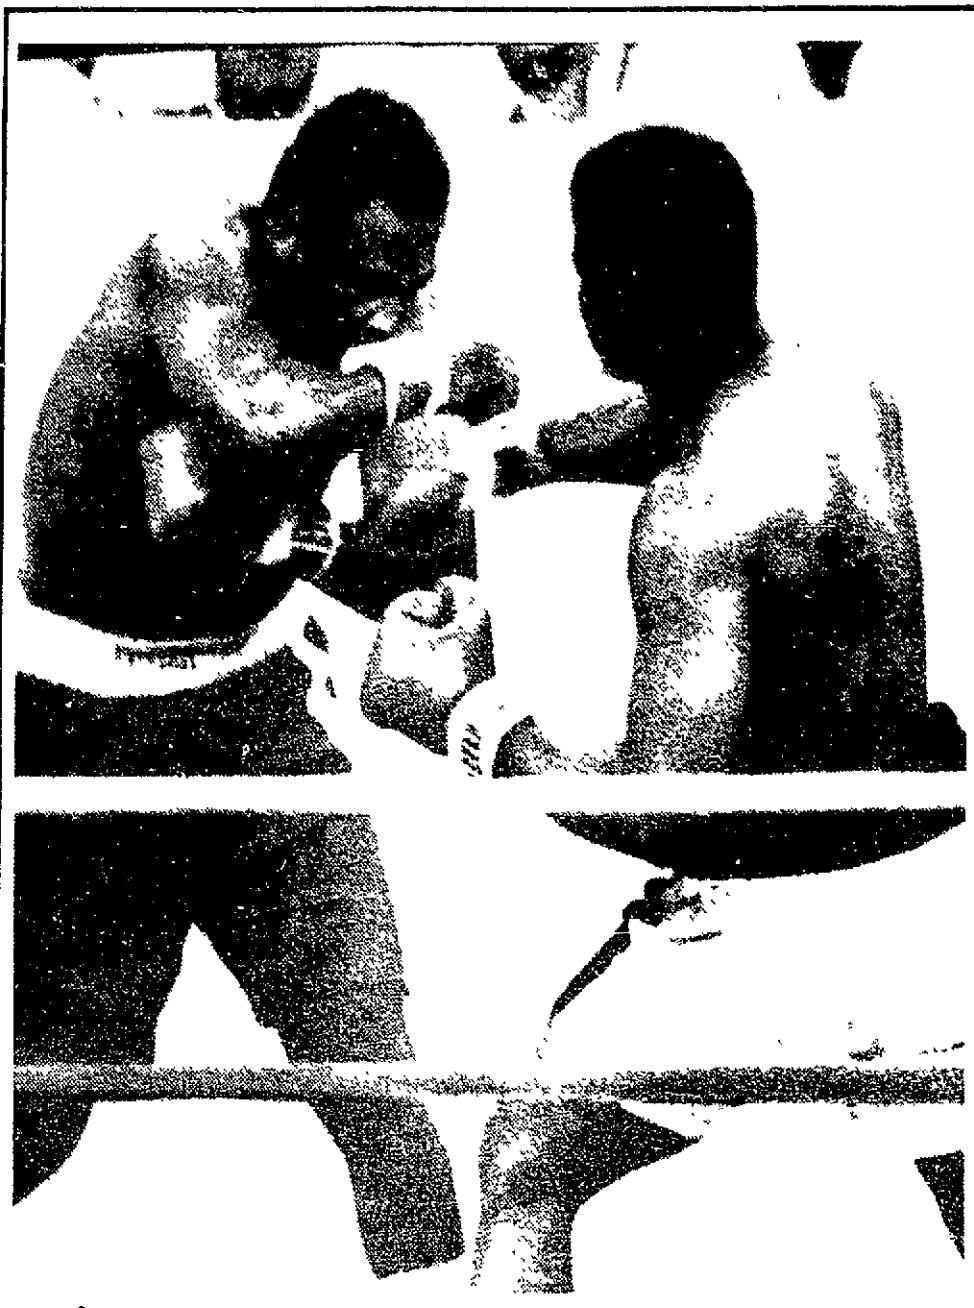

"But being what I am, I can only say that two-way communication with my friends and my fellow-Americans is for me an essential part of doing my job properly."

"I intend to keep my communications open, not in any foolhardy spirit, but by every prudent and practical means."

When Ford left the hotel ballroom after exhorting GOP followers to work to make 1976 a banner year for the party, he was followed by a platoon of 26 Secret Service agents and Chicago policemen. His security entourage appeared to have tripled on his first trip outside of Washington since the attempt on his life in San Francisco last week.

One woman standing along Ford's motorcade route waiting for a glimpse of the President was arrested after police found a .25 caliber automatic pistol in her purse. Carmen Teresa Pulido, in her 30s, was charged with carrying a loaded weapon. She was not considered a potential assassin.

Reds Refuse to Give Up Radio Station In Lisbon

LISBON, Portugal (UPI) — Mutinous troops sealed off the streets leading to a Communist-controlled radio station in downtown Lisbon today and set up a mortar on the balcony to battle any attempt by the police to occupy the facilities.

A small group of leftists gathered outside the studios of Radio Club in support of the soldiers armed with automatic rifles and teargas. The troops and workers inside the building began setting up their defenses after the soldiers refused to obey an order by Prime Minister Adm. Jose Pinheiro de Azevedo to turn the facilities over to police.

The move plunged Portugal into yet another political crisis and there were reports other troops had met secretly to discuss ways of countering Azevedo's efforts to avert anarchy. Two Communist newspapers accused him of trying to restore fascism 17 months after the right-wing dictatorship was overthrown.

Military sources said soldiers claiming to represent other leftist-controlled military units in the Lisbon military district held an anti-government conference to discuss ways of opposing the prime minister's program.

Azevedo issued orders during the night to end the 48-hour army occupation of all but one of Portugal's Communist-run radio and television stations. He said the government would keep Radio Renascença off the air because of its headline pro-Communist stance.

The withdrawal took place without incident at all stations except Radio Club where the soldiers have been siding with the employees against the government for the past two days.

"The soldiers held a meeting and decided against leaving the building," a spokesman for the station said. "Another meeting has now been called to discuss the problem."

Azevedo said police would still guard the stations and government censors would be on hand to clear political statements for broadcast.

His announcement came hours after a tough law and order speech in which he vowed to put down growing civil disobedience and unrest and reaffirmed his determination to establish the authority necessary to govern.

The action of the troops at Radio Club was matched by an openly anti-Azevedo conference held by troops claiming to represent the various military units stationed in the Lisbon military district.

Military sources said the meeting was held Tuesday afternoon at the headquarters of a leftist-controlled artillery regiment near the international airport.

The sources said it was called to discuss ways of countering the prime minister's program and included representatives from local labor unions, Radio Renascença and the far left newspaper Republica, once a Socialist paper.

"It is important in this moment to define which are the progressive units which in case of emergency can defend the workers," a motion passed at the conference said.

The two Communist-controlled morning newspapers O Seculo and Diario de Noticias described Azevedo's actions as a possible plot to restore the right-wing dictatorship that ruled Portugal for a half century before the military took power 17 months ago.

Dutchess DA Starts His 'Moon' Probe

By Tim Schuster

POUGHKEEPSIE

The phone had not stopped ringing Tuesday in Dutchess County District Attorney Albert Rosenblatt's office since word got out that his office had begun an investigation of the controversial Korean-based Unification Church.

He outlined his reasons for the "preliminary" investigation (no witnesses have yet been subpoenaed), stating that no single complaint or occurrence had prompted the decision, but rather it was the total weight of accumulated incidents.

One that apparently helped settle the decision a week ago was that involving a high New Jersey state official — James Sheeran, commissioner of insurance—who visited the prosecutor in Poughkeepsie after dropping an assault charge against the Barrytown branch in Red Hook Justice Court in return for the same courtesy on a counter charge by the church. Sheeran had been seeking the return of his daughter.

But Rosenblatt had been receiving a stream of complaints from parents of the youthful, but legally adult, converts to the effect that their children had been "brainwashed," the subjects of mind control, turned into willing slaves for the master Sun Myung Moon to hustle dollars in the street, and that attempts to get in contact with their children had been futile.

The complaints closely parallel similar ones across the country, as the church has, in the course of a very few years, established outposts in every state in cities, on collective farms, and on college campuses.

"We have had reports of heavy indoctrination, loosely translated into brainwashing," he said, leaning back in his chair and gazing out of his third story downtown window. "We are cognizant it is not children we are dealing with. If the atmosphere is not intimidating and there is no psychological exertion, it does not go beyond the First Amendment borders."

Another aspect of the investigation deals with various forms of psychological trauma. "There has been a disproportionate number of hospital entries," he said, referring to admissions to the Northern Dutchess Hospital emergency room in nearby Rhinebeck. "There has been a suicide and an attempted suicide we know of. These things are isolated, but the sum total may be significant."

Rosenblatt hastened to add, "I don't want to suggest we have concluded anything on the basis of hospital admissions. I'm not saying there is physical abuse." He admitted that the DA's office is "in the process" of getting hospital records through court order.

Bringing up the Sheeran incident, wherein the New Jersey man had claimed he, his wife, and 14-year-old son were assaulted on the Barrytown grounds while seeking their daughter and that Sheeran had been knocked unconscious and gagged, the DA repeated that "our concern is not with an isolated incident; but with a pattern that might suggest misconduct."

The Unification Church purchased the multi-million dollar Barrytown estate on the Hudson River and moved in 18 months ago, with little fanfare. The movement had attracted scant attention until converts marched in support of President Nixon shortly before his exodus from office, and was largely ignored in this area until Moon's huge Madison Square Garden rally last fall focused media attention.

Since that time, stories across the nation proliferated. The themes were almost identical to James Sheeran's tale. The "Moonies," as they are called by local people, continued seemingly unmindful of the uproar. They present a clean cut, straightforward image to the public and the converts all claim they have found true happiness.

But those who have broken away from the sect recount tales of mental coercion, constant fatigue, constant supervision, strict curfews for adults, and relentless indoctrination.

Bambi and the Cows

A little over a year ago Thomas Murphy of Mt. Pleasant, Mich., noticed his Holstein's darting around the pasture as though they were being spooked by a wild dog. Since then the Murphy family found that the problem was a young doe who has been adopted by both the cattle and the family. Murphy says they named it Bambi and feed it pails of grain but said that most of the time she enjoys being with the cows and eating what they eat. (UPI)

Polls Open 'til 9 Tonight

KINGSTON

The winner of today's five-way race for a seat on the Kingston Schools Consolidated Board of Education won't get the usual breather between election and taking office. He'll be sworn in tomorrow night, barring complications.

Normally, school board candidates are elected the first week in May and take office July 1. This is a special election to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of John Devine on July 22. The school board will meet Thursday night, canvass the election and declare an official winner who will immediately take his seat.

The five candidates seeking the post, which will expire on June 30, 1980 include four city of Kingston residents and one Zena resident.

One of the candidates, Joseph Feraca, of Alcazar Avenue, is a former member and president of the school board. Feraca ran last May finishing fifth. Four persons were elected.

One of them, Richard Skala, along with board vice president Fred Hofbauer, have endertaken one of the candidates,

Michael Bohan of Fourth Avenue.

Wayne Schubert of Pine Street and James Attenweiler of Zena have both been active in the campaign and frequent speakers at school board meetings over the past five years.

Seymour Kassler, the father of six children, has been active at St. Joseph's Church.

Polls will be open until 9 p.m. tonight.

Gay Marine Hero Suing the Press

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The disabled ex-Marine whose quick action may have saved President Ford's life is suing seven major newspapers for $15 million on grounds they invaded his privacy.

The suit filed Tuesday in superior court by Oliver W. Sipple said that the defendants published reports which "disclosed that the plaintiff is homosexual in his personal and private sexual orientation."

Sipple's attorney, John E. Wahl, said "he saved the President's life, but that doesn't give the press the right to pry into his personal, sexual orientation."

As a result of the disclosure, Wahl said Sipple's family has stopped speaking to him and Sipple has been exposed to contempt, ridicule, and humiliation.

Sipple struck the hand of Sara Jane Moore Sept. 22 about the instant she fired a single shot at Ford. A police officer then grabbed the gun and other officers seized Miss Moore.

The White House mailed a letter of thanks from President Ford four days after the incident expressing appreciation.

The story of Sipple's sexual interests was first run in the San Francisco Chronicle by columnist Herb Caen. Later, the story was developed by the Los Angeles Times and distributed widely.

Teachers, Boards Are Citicized By Nyquist

By Tim Schuster

LIBERTY

"We pay for the things we don't have as surely as we pay for the things we have, only in different coin," quoted State Education Commissioner Ewald Nyquist Monday to the New York State Council of School District Administrators.

It was a return visit for the commissioner to the hot seat, and he set the tone for his remarks prior to an hour's question answer session at Grossinger's Resort Hotel.

He enlarged upon previous exhortation of attempts to diminish the quality of education in the state and the upcoming regulation setting a minimum schoolday in response to the New York City teachers union settlement to that effect, and he denigrated Albert Shanker's contention that the state pay for reintroduction of something that had just been bargained away.

Both the teachers' unions and the school boards came in for their share of criticism from the top education official, as he termed some boards "defeatist" and stated that many "need more guts."

"You can't ask us for help in getting to a level you should be at already," charged Nyquist, saying he believed in "participatory democracy," and "we'll get nowhere" without staff input.

The commissioner listed his priorities as maintaining quality education in the face of economic problems; increasing administrative participation of women; and getting the message to the public on "what is right with education in New York State."

Declaring himself "a feminist since 1953," Nyquist noted that while half the state's teachers are women less than four per cent of high school principals were, and of the 750 members of the administrators' council there were less than three women.

Some general remarks from Nyquist: "We can no longer allow education to be a many splintered thing," and "The costs of exaggerated individualism are too high."

An aside on his relations with news editorial writers: "An editorial writer is a person who, after the battle on the plains is over, rides down from the hills and shoots the wounded."

A look to the future will see implementation of a "management of decline" even though some districts' population is still increasing.

Mandating minimum instruction time will be flexible, he said, stating that he is "committee to independent study" and the progressive merging of secondary and higher education.

On state aid, "We have come to the penultimate point in state aid for this year." After review by the board of regents, findings should be made public in early November. While declining to give some hard details, he said it was a "good program, that may startle some" and it would "not be zero growth."

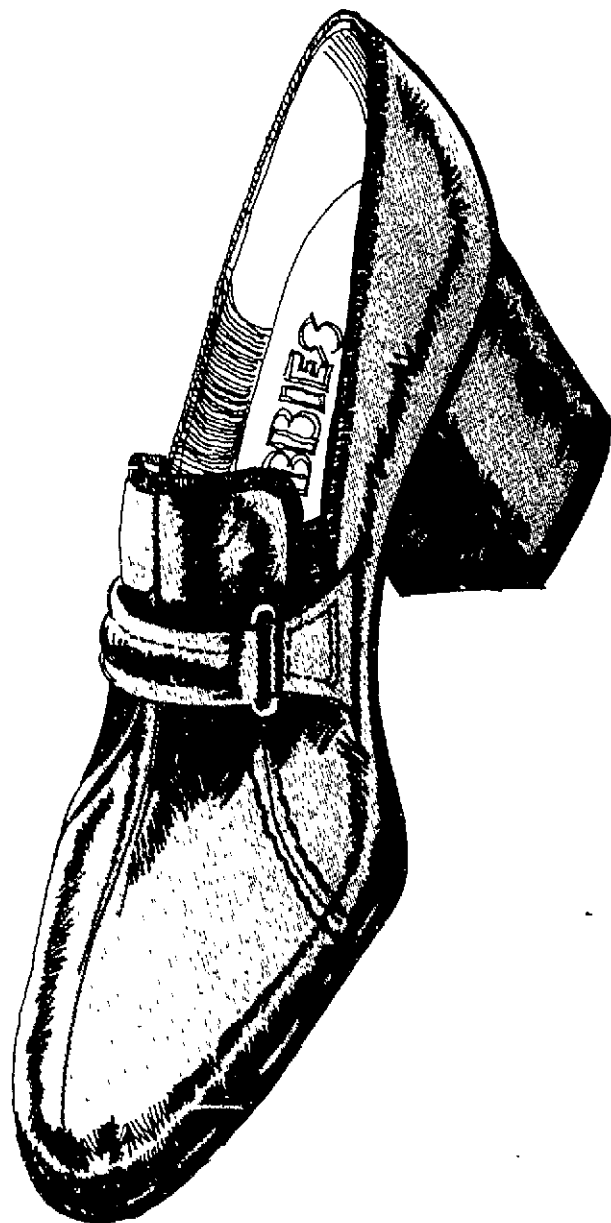

Nyquist said he would "not retreat" from positions on new programs in the face of declining enrollment, as one administrator commented the issue "has become ammunition for the teachers' unions."

He was asked whether the education department was considering more regulations on non-negotiable items, such as the length of the teaching day recently proposed. He replied he had been asked by the Regents to come up with "other related concerns," and mentioned tenure as a possibility. Nyquist saw "no reason to monkey with the 180 day requirement," noting the state can only set minimums, not maximums, as we operate under Anglo-Saxon law under the theory that "nobody has the right to be as bad as he can be."

On possible state mandating of guidance counsellors and class size he answered that this would constitute intrusion on local control and the state has no funds to back this up.

Nyquist was also highly in favor of regional or state contract negotiations, as he had stated when he first took office, and commented, "Unions are here to stay, and we have only seen the beginnings in this country, compared to Europe."

The commissioner was asked how administrators should respond to "inflammatory rhetoric" by union members during negotiations. The question from a Newburgh administrator prompted this reply: "There is no remedy except firmness and civilized discourse, but there is no solution, just as with the abuse I take from Senator (Richard) Schermerhorn in your area."

Patty's Trial Not Likely Before Next Year, Claims Bailey

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The chief lawyer for newspaper heiress Patricia Hearst says his client will not be tried before 1976.

Famed attorney F. Lee Bailey was asked Tuesday when his client might go to court and said "it's impossible to put it together before the end of the year."

U.S. Attorney James Browning planned to meet later today with state Attorney General Evette Younger and top law officials from around the state to discuss how, when and where she would be prosecuted.

When she does go on trial, it is clear that Miss Hearst's mental condition will be a pivotal issue.

"Obviously the state of mind of the defendant will be a big factor," Bailey said Tuesday.

Attorneys John Knutsen and Terence Hallinan, also on the six-man defense team, told a federal court judge Tuesday their client is on the edge of a "nervous breakdown."

They filed their statement with Federal Judge Oliver Carter upon his request for a personal assessment to be added to her affidavit of last week in which she asserted she was tortured, brutalized, and almost driven insane after her kidnapping.

Miss Hearst, 21, granddaughter of newspaper giant William Randolph Hearst and daughter of the president of the San Francisco Examiner, was taken from her apartment Feb. 4, 1974 by members of the Symbionese Liberation Army. In later tape-recorded messages, she renounced her former life and said she was joining the SLA. But the affidavit she signed last week said she was brainwashed.

"Any attempt to force Miss Hearst into a discussion of the dark areas of her recent past brings her to tears and extreme emotional turmoil," the statement submitted by her lawyers Tuesday said.

"It is our opinion that forcing her at this time to deal with these areas which her mind shut out of consciousness might result in a permanent and irreversible psychosis."

Miss Hearst, held on a federal bank robbery charge, was to be taken from her cell at San Mateo County Jail today to Stanford University Medical Center for another round of psychiatric tests by court-appointed experts.

Those who saw her briefly emerge from the jail to a waiting car to go to Stanford for a 4 1/2-hour examination Tuesday said that she walked erect and was smiling.

13-Hour Kidnaping Drama

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (UPI) — All night, General Motors executive William Schulenberg feared for the life of his family, kidnaped by three tough-talking gunmen. Then — unharmed — they came home, freed by the payment of $54,000.

"It was an unnerving experience," said Schulenberg Tuesday. "I never want to do that again."

The three youthful kidnapers, one described as "just a kid," were still free today.

The 13-hour drama began about 9:30 p.m. Monday when the gunmen broke into the Schulenberg home in an exclusive neighborhood and demanded money.

Schulenberg, 48, manager of the GM Hydramatic division plant at nearby Ypsilanti, said the men were "rough and tough for the first 10 or 15 minutes. They started with some ridiculous figures."

"I had the feeling they must have wanted publicity," he said.

He told them he had no money in the house.

The gunmen then took his wife, Ruth, and their sons, Bill, 11, Jeff, 15, and Bob, 16, and jammed them in the trunk of Schulenberg's company-owned car.

Two of the men drove away. The third stayed with Schulenberg, who began trying to raise the ransom by calling friends, police said.

Mrs. Schulenberg said she complained, at one point, about a lack of air in the trunk, so one of the men lifted the lid and shot three holes into it.

Schulenberg, meanwhile, arranged for his boss — plant general manager George Griffith — to pick up the ransom money from an Ann Arbor bank.

Then he waited.

Schulenberg said he spent most of the night with his captor watching television, while the two accomplices called off and on. "In fact, one time I had to wake him up to answer the phone," Schulenberg said.

Police were notified, but did not move in immediately out of fear for the victims' lives.

Schulenberg's wife and two sons were returned just before the ransom was paid, and the third son returned home on foot three hours later.

"I have no idea why they chose me," Schulenberg said.

Still No Music on Broadway

NEW YORK (UPI) — longer pay musicians who Calvin Holmes walked angrily down Broadway. Like hundreds of tourists, he enjoys musicals — but can't see one in New York.

"I love musicals and its totally unfair," he said loud enough for anyone to hear. "I think its totally unfair for producers to pay people who don't contribute."

And that, briefly, is the issue in a musicians strike that began two weeks ago, closing nine Broadway musicals. The walkout is now causing an estimated $2 million loss per day.

Musicians call the "walkers" — musicians who get paid for not performing — understudies. Producers call them featherbedders.

Producers insist they will no longer pay musicians who don't play.

The union says the "walkers" mean job security, and keep producers from cutting back on personnel by requiring fewer musicians to play more instruments.

So both sides wait it out. All of which is little consolation for waiters, porters, ushers, bartenders, hotel maids, busboys and actors who have been laid off because of the strike.

"Is there any way at all to compel both sides to come together," an unemployed actor asked at a meeting Tuesday of persons affected by the strike. "Perhaps the President?"

William Herz, who sold theater tickets before the strike, said his sales are terrible.

"We had three shows last night ... but nobody seems to care," he said. All three were dramas.

"One union puts everybody out of work."

He was shouting.

"Every single person in this city is going to be affected by this strike, the hotels, cab drivers, everybody."

Vincent McDonnell, a state mediator, tried to explain why the strike can't be settled, but the businessmen and actors seemed to think he wasn't doing all he could.

"Lock them in until they are tired and exhausted, then perhaps their state of mind will force both sides to come to some sort of agreement," an actor suggested.

More Violence In Spain

MADRID (UPI) — Roving bands of snipers killed three Madrid policemen and wounded a fourth today at height of a mammoth demonstration celebrating the 39th anniversary of Generalissimo Francisco Franco's rise to power, the national news agency Cifra said.

The slayings brought to 22 the number of policemen killed by terrorists in the past year and gave new impetus to the pro-Franco demonstrations which also protested worldwide condemnation of Spain for its execution of five terrorists last Saturday. Those terrorists had been convicted of killing policemen.

Hundreds of thousands of Spaniards brought into the heart of the city by buses and trucks gathered in the tree-shaded, 25-acre Plaza de Oriente Square in front of the 18th Century Royal Palace to shout their praise of Franco, who became the caudillo (leader) 39 years ago today during the Spanish Civil War.

Despite the violence scattered throughout the city, Franco made a five-minute speech to the milling throng.

Huge red-and-yellow Spanish flags were hung from buildings in the center of Madrid. Cars with loudspeaker cruised the streets calling on citizens to attend the demonstration. Streets and squares were littered with millions of leaflets.

Groups of Franco supporters banded together and shouted slogans in support of Franco. "Arriba Espana!" (Up Spain), "Down with Foreign Intervention!" and "Death to Terrorists!" Some shouted "The Army to Power!"

The national news agency Cifra said police seized two weekly magazines, including Mundo, which was about to be distributed to newsstands with a cover headline reading "Black September." The cause of the seizure apparently was a story giving details of the execution of one of the guerrillas.

While bands of snipers concentrated on Madrid policemen, another act of violence was reported from the Basque country where arsonists partially burned down a paper mill in the town of Renteria.

One policeman was shot near the central Generalissimo Avenue, one on the southern fringe of the city center and two in workers' areas.

One officer, identified as Antonio Gutierrez Ferreiro, 22, was shot and killed by two gunmen outside the Spanish Credit Bank. It was not known if they also tried to rob the bank.

All Spanish banks are guarded by armed police standing in the street.

An employe in a bank near the scene of another shooting said, "We heard the shots in the street and dropped to the floor. When we later went out in the street, we saw a policeman on the ground in a huge pool of blood."

Witnesses said another policeman was shot by two youths who got out of their car, fired their guns and then climbed back in and drove off.

During the night, right-wing gangs attacked and ransacked the Madrid offices of the Mexican and Portuguese airlines.

Mexico demanded Spain's ouster from the United Nations because of the executions and Portuguese demonstrators attacked the Spanish consulate in Lisbon to protest the death sentences.

The Madrid rally in support of Franco also marked the 39th anniversary of the proclamation that made him Spain's leader.

Display Weapons, And Rob Students

By Matt Spireng

NEW PALTZ

Threatening the occupants with two handguns and a knife, three robbers entered a dormitory room at the State University College at New Paltz late Tuesday and fled with some $260 in cash.

State police said the armed holdup men knocked on a door to a room in Crispell Hall, and when one of the occupants answered the knock the trio burst in, brandishing their weapons.

According to initial reports, there were two or three students in the room at the time of the 11:30 p.m. robbery. The three armed men forced the occupants to lie face down while they collected $260 in cash, a bank book and a traveler's check. The trio then fled, leaving the students, who were not identified, unharmed.

Campus security personnel were notified of the holdup, and state police BCI investigators were called in.

Authorities said all three robbers were black. One, police said, wore a ski mask and carried a pocket knife; he was said to be about 6 feet 1. Another was described as about 5 feet 8, with a "fuzzy" beard and wearing a "woman's-type floppy hat." No description was available of the third robber.

Police said it was not known whether the three fled the scene on foot or by auto.

Meanwhile, in other area police matters: Two youths, including one reportedly from Kingston, who fled the Cossackie Correctional Facility in Greene County Tuesday afternoon were captured by state police and prison guards about an hour after they turned up missing.

Police said the pair, identified as William Knapp, 19, of Kingston, and Michael Liberty, 18, of Plattsburgh, were working on an outside work detail when they fled at about 2:15 p.m. They were captured in Cossackie at about 3:30 p.m. as they walked along a road.

Police said Knapp is serving time on robbery and assault charges and that Liberty is in prison on a burglary charge.

A Cornwall cabinet maker was arrested Tuesday by Hurley State Police BCI investigators on a warrant charging him with grand larceny, a felony.

Authorities said the man, Charles Bruyn, allegedly obtained $1,560 from an unidentified Ulster County family to install kitchen cabinets at their home during the summer, but never produced the cabinets. The family went to court and obtained a warrant for Bruyn's arrest. Bruyn was jailed in lieu of $2,000 bail following arraignment.

BCI investigators also arrested Mark Countryman, 20, of Accord, Tuesday night on a charge of third degree burglary in connection with a recent burglary at a Town of Hurley resort building. Countryman was jailed in lieu of $500 bail.

Two New York City juveniles were charged with burglary by Rhinebeck State Police Tuesday after they were picked up at Grand Central Station by railroad police. Authorities said the two stole nearly $100 and a purse from the Red Hook residence of a woman whom they knew. According to police the two took a train late Monday from New York City, arriving in Rhinecliff, and returned by train early Tuesday. They will be petitioned into family court.

A young High Falls woman, identified as Jerri Ellen DuBois, 22, was treated and released at Benedictine Hospital early today after her car ran off Main Street in Rosendale, struck a utility pole, and plunged down an embankment, ending up partly in the Rondout Creek. Police said she was pulled from the car by another motorist and a village patrolman. She was charged with driving while intoxicated.

Power in the eastern end of the Village of Rosendale was reportedly out for more than an hour following the crash.

'Should Invest More Money, Time in City'

KINGSTON S. James Matthews, campaign manager for Republican Mayoral Candidate William K. Darling, suggested today that Mayor Francis R. Koenig should invest more time and money in the city of Kingston, like Darling.

Matthews, an uptown attorney, was responding to an attack on Darling by Eugene Perry, a county legislator who recently opened a restaurant on Broadway.

Darling had been critical of a ribbon-cutting picture of Perry's grand opening, suggesting that being mayor involved more than getting one's picture taken cutting ribbons.

Matthews said that Darling had issued that particular statement in criticism of Koenig's "do-nothing" record on urban renewal. "Mr. Perry attacks Bill Darling for having successfully invested in Kingston's future by attracting a major manufacturer to move to Kingston," Matthews said.

"This action of Darling's on his own will mean over 100 jobs to the community. Does Perry oppose this? The Democratic legislator, in his quest for headlines, attacks Bill Darling for being successful."

Matthews went on to say that, "It seems to me that it's about time that Kingston had a successful businessman as mayor. If Mr. Perry seeks to infer that Kingston is a successful place because of Frank Koenig's administration, then perhaps he will explain why this same Frank Koenig while mayor of Kingston invested his money in the purchase of land for a movie theater in Cohoes and not in the city whose government he heads."

"Perhaps he can (Perry) somehow convince the voters that the present mayor really had his heart in building up Kingston by going to Cohoes,"

Matthews said. "Maybe he'll find it easy to tell the people the mayor's reasons for doing this while tens of acres of urban renewal (land) in Kingston remain vacant."

Perhaps the residents of Kingston will realize that the reason for the mayor's lack of interest in the city's problems for the past two years has been caused by his thoughts being involved in another city in a floundering business in which he is personally financially obligated," Matthews charged.

Matthews goes on to declare that "Mr. Perry is obviously fronting for Mayor Koenig who has yet to issue a statement on his last two years in office and the gross shortcomings of his administration. These included such things as city hall, city dump, fire department controversy, city blight and the critical report of experts hired by the mayor's own charter commission," said Matthews.

Matthews offered and apology to Perry for being singled out for criticism and wished him success in his new business.

"Perhaps if he should enjoy success he will be less prone to criticize those who have experienced this," Matthews said. "Hopefully we have yet to come to a point in our country where legitimately obtained gains should become the subject of ridicule or contempt," he concluded.

'Monkey Ad'... Darling's View

KINGSTON

William K. Darling, Republican candidate for mayor, says that rather than apologizing for his "monkey ad" in Sunday's Freeman as Mayor Francis R. Koenig has demanded, he's going to run it again on Friday.

Traffic Safety Board

KINGSTON

Ulster County Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago has re-appointed five members whose terms expired in September to the county's Traffic Safety Board.

Renamed were Eric Winkky of New Paltz, Herbert L. Wells of Shokan, David Goble of Saugerties, Brendon D. Alexander of Kingston and George D. Kakoulis of Kingston. All five will serve until Sept. 13, 1978.

The safety board consists of 12 members and three ex-officio members, all serving without compensation.

The board promotes and encourages street and highway traffic safety and safety education for drivers and pedestrians; formulates countywide highway safety programs and coordinates efforts of interested parties and agencies engaged in traffic safety education; cooperates with local officials within the county in formulating and executing traffic safety programs and activities; studies traffic conditions and analyzes reports of accidents and their causes; and offers recommendations for changes in rules, orders, regulations and existing laws.

Saugerties Legislator Clifford W. Snyder, chairman of the Sheriff's Committee, is the legislative ex-officio member of the board.

"Darling's ad depicted Koenig, his running mate, T. Robert Gallo and the Common Council as resemblances of the three monkeys of 'see no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil' only in the Darling ad it was 'see no problems, hear no problems, make no comment' the latter in reference to Koenig."

Darling also had a fourth monkey, a "city resident," with the caption "have no voice."

Koenig demanded an apology not only on behalf of himself and his administration but city residents as well.

"It was certainly not our intention to depict the residents of the city as monkeys," Darling said today. "We were quite obviously following the theme with the 'see no evil' classic. But in so far as the characterization pertains to the mayor, his alderman-at-large (Gallo) and the Common Council, we feel it may be significant."

Darling contends that by running his ad on Friday "the citizens can see first hand how much ability the mayor has on ducking the issues."

Concluding, Darling said, "the ad is merely trying to call attention to the issues and quite obviously does not deal with personalities. It is inconceivable that our three-term mayor has such a thin skin or rather an innate ability at skirting the issues. Maybe after the ad runs a second time the mayor will choose to address himself to issues rather than personalities."

We Hold These Truths... A Chronicle of America

'Mischief':

Benjamin Franklin of Philadelphia writes to his British friend, David Hartley: "We know that you [in England] may do us a great deal of mischief, and are determined to bear it patiently as long as we can. But if you flatter yourselves with beating us into submission, you know neither the people nor the country."

'Pressing The Flesh'

It is sensible for the President to wear a bullet-proof vest when he expects to plunge into crowds, as he did recently in New Hampshire.

Precautions should be taken against the kind of incident that has given Lynette "Squeaky" Fromme so much public attention this month.

Preferably the precautions should be unobtrusive, as a bulletproof vest is. The obvious presence of extreme security measures only raises the level of anxiety and destroys that feeling of mutual trust and confidence which is essential to the health of a democratic community.

Unfortunately a single crazy or a handful of them can cause the entire nation to live in apprehension.

The President must not be intimidated from going out among the people. But we have ample evidence of the threat that awaits him there, posed by the presence of even a single twisted mind in the crowds that are attracted by the public appearance of a president.

Mass media increase the reward of instant celebrity to assassins.

Presidential "pressing the flesh" (Lyndon Johnson's inelegant phrase) is a media event itself, done more to create a public image of an open, popular presidency than for any other reason. There is symbolic value to the practice. But it can easily be overdone.

A president really learns nothing by shaking a thousand eager hands in a pressing crowd. It is a mechanical performance. There is no real communication between him and the people in such circumstances.

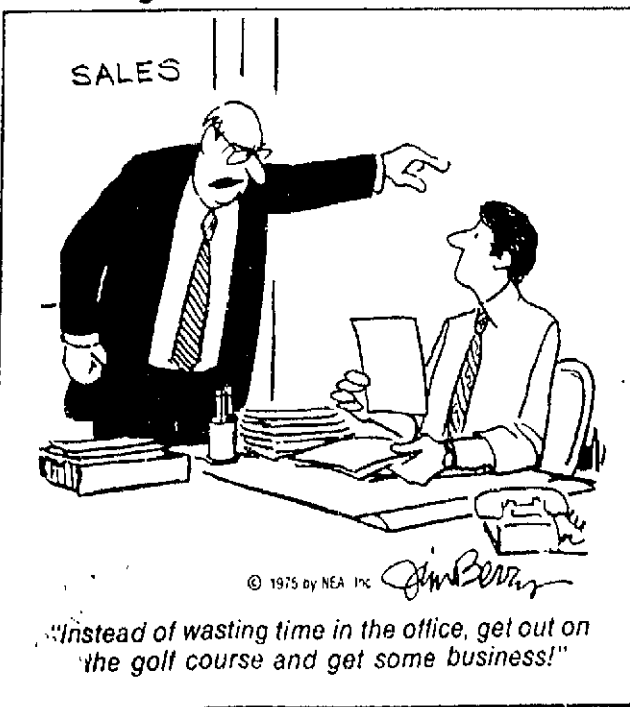

Wearing a bulletproof vest makes sense. So does restricting such displays of popularity to a minimum. The people will be better served if the president does not expose himself to danger more than is necessary.

Mindless Monkeys

Mayor Francis Koenig reacted like a burro with a burr under his saddle to Republican challenger William Darling's political ad in Sunday's Freeman depicting the Common Council and the Koenig-Gallo team as a bunch of mindless, sightless monkeys. While ever aware that all's fair in love and politics, the mayor decided to mount his counterattack as a defender of the populace.

Koenig declared that he thought it was fitting that he apologize on Darling's behalf to the good citizens of Kingston for being depicted as a voiceless ape in the same ad. And we think the mayor has a case. An awful lot of the slander in political campaigns is usually taken with a grain of salt, with the two combatants generally shaking hands and letting bygones be bygones after Election Day. But caricaturing the voter as a voiceless ape is another matter that could boomerang at the polls. It is suggested that Darling's PR people be a little more careful and try to avoid overkill in the future.

WASHINGTON—In Washington, both Congress and the Justice Department are investigating our charges of last July that Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos offered a witness a $50,000 bribe not to testify in Capitol Hill about corruption and tyranny in the Philippines.

In Manila, Marcos reacted in a different way. He brought criminal charges against the witness, former press censor Primitivo Mijares, and is now using the criminal complaint as a ruse to seek his extradition.

Marcos has also retaliated against a San Francisco newspaper, the weekly Philippine News, which played up our bribe story. He brought pressure through his Secretary Of Tourism, Jose Asirras, on U.S. travel agencies to withdraw their ads from the paper.

The Marcos regime has the power, of course, to deny Philippine visas, commercial papers and other documents to clients of the travel agencies. As a result four travel agencies have closed their accounts with the Philippine News. Publisher Alex Esclamado estimates the advertising loss will cost him $50,000 a year.

A spokesman for the Philippine Embassy in Washington told us that the embassy has no knowledge of any advertising boycott against the Philippine News. If advertising was withdrawn from the paper, the spokesman added, "these acts were unsanctioned by the Philippine government."

On the contrary, we have obtained the actual letter that was sent to two of the travel agencies. It confirms the extortion in the baldest terms. We have also established that the pressure came directly from Marcos' personal aide, Dr. Guillermo De Vega.

The letter, written by Hotel Filipinas president Jose Cobarrubias, declares bluntly: "This letter will serve to confirm the verbal message that the Honorable Jose D. Asirras, Secretary of Tourism, asked me yesterday afternoon to convey to you, i.e., that he would consider it a personal favor if you would discontinue your advertisements in the Philippine News."

"As you know the Philippine News has been continuously attacking the President. You also are aware of Secretary Asirras' utmost respect for, and loyalty to, President Marcos; hence, this request should not be too much of a surprise to you."

In a cable to the Philippine Embassy, Cobarrubias has taken full responsibility for the extortion letter. "Before I tried to persuade the travel agencies to pull out from Philippine News," he cabled, "I talked with Secretary of Tourism Jose Asirras, and he agreed with me that the newspaper and others like it were hurting the local tourism industry."

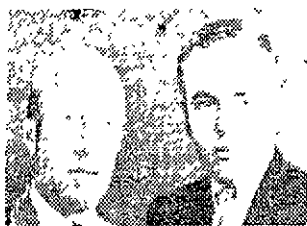

"He said he and his department would not object to my campaign and would not stop me from going ahead with it since it was based on my own personal conviction."

We have an affidavit that we have verified, however, that the real pressure came from Marcos' Malacanang palace. His personal aide in Manila and Philippine consul Trinidad Alconcel in San Francisco put the heat on the travel agencies, according to our sworn evidence.

The two agencies, Phil-Am and Gem, regularly send officials to Manila. Both Phil-Am's Emile Heredia and Gem's Joseph Libunao countered pressure in Manila. Libunao sent a cryptic cable to his San Francisco office declaring: "Requested by Asirras to cooperate with Malacanang to help with the scandal. . . Will explain details."

Spokesmen for the travel firms were shocked that we had obtained the extortion letter. They confirmed that they had cancelled their ads but refused to comment on their reasons. Explained Heredia: "I have a lot of employees. I do not want to get involved."

WASHINGTON—Late last month a high-level Soviet diplomat here secretly sought out one of this country's top Middle East experts to ask about reaction here and in the Middle East of the Kremlin restored diplomatic relations with Israel.

That a Soviet diplomat would seek U.S. advice on such a volatile matter is strong evidence how worried the Soviets are at having been blocked by Secretary of State Henry Kissinger's skillful diplomacy from playing more than a bystander role in Arab-Israeli mediation.

Restoration of the Moscow-Jerusalem diplomatic link, broken during the 1967 Arab-Israeli war, would have these probable results, in the view of American officials:

Cut the heart out of the Palestine Liberation Organization's campaign that Israel can't continue as a Jewish state; weaken radical Arab states, including Libya and Iraq; and give Soviet diplomacy for more scope that it has now.

The immediate result of a new Soviet-Israeli link would subject Moscow to political attack from radical Arabs, particularly extremists in the PLO. But Arab moderates—now dominant within the Arab world—would privately cheer Moscow.

These moderates, led by Saudi Arabia and Egypt, want settlement, not the extinction of Israel. They fear further radicalization of the PLO and feel renewal of Soviet diplomacy in Israel might undercut the radicals.

None of this means the Kremlin has finally decided to set up housekeeping in Tel Aviv. But the secret approach to the American Mideast expert, coupled with last Wednesday's Mahattan talk between Soviet foreign minister Andrei Gromyko and Israeli foreign minister Yigal Alon, shows how the Kremlin winds are now blowing.

A footnote: Some U.S. diplomats worry that a Moscow move back to Israel might make Israel less flexible, although in the long run the U.S. would favor it.

WALLACE-McGOVERN AXIS

The latest effort by the Democratic party establishment to stack the delegate deck against Gov. George Wallace is being opposed not only by Wallace but by some unlikely allies: McGovernite forces on the party's left.

State chairman Don Fowler of South Carolina, close to national chairman Robert Strauss, is pushing a rules change to permit up to 25 percent uncommitted delegates on each state delegation to the 1976 convention—thereby mitigating Wallace victories in the presidential primary elections.

Wallace's meager forces within the national committee are powerless alone to stop adoption of Fowler's proposal when the committee meets here Oct. 14-15. But now Wallace is supported by the Democratic Planning Group (DPG), organ of the committee's big left-wing bloc.

Alan Baron, top DPG staffer, plotted against Fowler's proposal in long-distance telephone conversation last week with Wallace aide Mickey Griffin, Democratic national committeeman from Alabama.

"What they can do to Wallace this time, they can do to a McGovern next time," Baron, who is also McGovern's press secretary, explained.

Beyond that, McGovernites shudder over establishment Democrats huddling with Strauss behind closed convention doors to pick the presidential nominee.

Rules for the 1976 convention permit up to 25 percent of a delegation to be selected at large by the state central committee. That was intended to bring to the New York convention the governors, Senators, and state chairmen sadly lacking at Miami Beach. In 1972, But the rules require these at-large delegates to vote in the same proportion as elected district delegates.

For example, if Wallace sweeps Tennessee's district delegates in the primary, anti-Wallace state party leaders must vote for Wallace as at-large delegates.

Fowler would fix that by permitting at-large delegates to stay uncommitted, regardless of primary election rules.

Insisting this is not aimed at Wallace, Fowler says he wants to assure the presence of party notables in New York.

To Wallace, this is only the latest attempt by national party leaders to nullify his popularity. When the national committee meets, Griffin will attack the Fowler proposal as an intolerable last straw.

FORD'S GAG ORDER

Stung by criticism of campaign chairman Howard (Bo) Callaway, President Ford has imposed an unpublished gag order on the entire White House staff to leave Callaway alone.

That cease-and-desist order had the full support of White House staff chief Donald Rumsfeld, playing an increasingly potent 1976 political role as liaison between the White House and Callaway (hand picked by Rumsfeld as campaign chairman).

Callaway critics have zeroed in on two complaints: his undermining of Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and his concentration on lining up big-name Republicans for Mr. Ford instead of on grass-roots organization in the primary states.

Asked for an opinion of Callaway's performance last week, one White House aide, revealing a smirk, said: "Sorry, I can't talk about BO."

On the last day, Oct. 28th, he sat in his Kittyhawk rocker in the Oval Office. Mrs. B. and I sat on a sofa at the fireplace.

"Next on the agenda," he said softly, "is a trip to Texas. You know something, for the first time Jackie is going to be with me. She doesn't like these political things."

I nodded. He said he had read a book of mine. I asked which one. "The Day Lincoln Was Shot," he said. "I enjoyed it. I must tell you that I agree with Lincoln on assassination. Nobody in the world can protect you if somebody — how shall I say it? — somebody wants to exchange his life for yours."

A week before Dallas, Kennedy was in Florida. Crowds closed in on a motorcade. Kennedy smiled and waved from an open car. Secret Service men tried to board the car at the sides and at the trunk. Under his breath the President was roaring. "Get off the car. Get...off...the — damn car." When they dropped off, he ordered the chauffeur to increase speed. He outstripped his protection.

Robert Kennedy, who was not a President, departed from a Los Angeles hotel by a rear kitchen to avoid a boisterous crowd. He heard a pop. His last words were, "Is it serious?"

Today any President can reach a hundred million people through the television camera. He can shake hands with no more than a few hundred. Isn't it a pity that our Presidents read history without learning?

The latest effort by the Democratic party establishment to stack the delegate deck against Gov. George Wallace is being opposed not only by Wallace but by some unlikely allies: McGovernite forces on the party's left.

State chairman Don Fowler of South Carolina, close to national chairman Robert Strauss, is pushing a rules change to permit up to 25 percent uncommitted delegates on each state delegation to the 1976 convention—thereby mitigating Wallace victories in the presidential primary elections.

Wallace's meager forces within the national committee are powerless alone to stop adoption of Fowler's proposal when the committee meets here Oct. 14-15. But now Wallace is supported by the Democratic Planning Group (DPG), organ of the committee's big left-wing bloc.

Alan Baron, top DPG staffer, plotted against Fowler's proposal in long-distance telephone conversation last week with Wallace aide Mickey Griffin, Democratic national committeeman from Alabama.

"What they can do to Wallace this time, they can do to a McGovern next time," Baron, who is also McGovern's press secretary, explained.

Beyond that, McGovernites shudder over establishment Democrats huddling with Strauss behind closed convention doors to pick the presidential nominee.

Rules for the 1976 convention permit up to 25 percent of a delegation to be selected at large by the state central committee. That was intended to bring to the New York convention the governors, Senators, and state chairmen sadly lacking at Miami Beach. In 1972, But the rules require these at-large delegates to vote in the same proportion as elected district delegates.

For example, if Wallace sweeps Tennessee's district delegates in the primary, anti-Wallace state party leaders must vote for Wallace as at-large delegates.

Fowler would fix that by permitting at-large delegates to stay uncommitted, regardless of primary election rules.

Insisting this is not aimed at Wallace, Fowler says he wants to assure the presence of party notables in New York.

To Wallace, this is only the latest attempt by national party leaders to nullify his popularity. When the national committee meets, Griffin will attack the Fowler proposal as an intolerable last straw.

FORD'S GAG ORDER

Stung by criticism of campaign chairman Howard (Bo) Callaway, President Ford has imposed an unpublished gag order on the entire White House staff to leave Callaway alone.

That cease-and-desist order had the full support of White House staff chief Donald Rumsfeld, playing an increasingly potent 1976 political role as liaison between the White House and Callaway (hand picked by Rumsfeld as campaign chairman).

Callaway critics have zeroed in on two complaints: his undermining of Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and his concentration on lining up big-name Republicans for Mr. Ford instead of on grass-roots organization in the primary states.

Asked for an opinion of Callaway's performance last week, one White House aide, revealing a smirk, said: "Sorry, I can't talk about BO."

On the last day, Oct. 28th, he sat in his Kittyhawk rocker in the Oval Office. Mrs. B. and I sat on a sofa at the fireplace.

"Next on the agenda," he said softly, "is a trip to Texas. You know something, for the first time Jackie is going to be with me. She doesn't like these political things."

I nodded. He said he had read a book of mine. I asked which one. "The Day Lincoln Was Shot," he said. "I enjoyed it. I must tell you that I agree with Lincoln on assassination. Nobody in the world can protect you if somebody — how shall I say it? — somebody wants to exchange his life for yours."

A week before Dallas, Kennedy was in Florida. Crowds closed in on a motorcade. Kennedy smiled and waved from an open car. Secret Service men tried to board the car at the sides and at the trunk. Under his breath the President was roaring. "Get off the car. Get...off...the — damn car." When they dropped off, he ordered the chauffeur to increase speed. He outstripped his protection.

Robert Kennedy, who was not a President, departed from a Los Angeles hotel by a rear kitchen to avoid a boisterous crowd. He heard a pop. His last words were, "Is it serious?"

Today any President can reach a hundred million people through the television camera. He can shake hands with no more than a few hundred. Isn't it a pity that our Presidents read history without learning?

In the third week of October, 1963, I spent several days with President John F. Kennedy in the White

Freeman Readers Write

Editor, the Freeman:

Affected citizens must be concerned with professional ethics that allow a managerial consultant agency to draw conclusions and to offer recommendations on numbers of municipal employees without careful consideration of all criteria affecting the need for service.

The proposal that Kingstons Police and Fire Departments are greatly overmanned is a good example of this type irresponsible and unprofessional conduct.

The consultant, rather than proceed through a time consuming rational decision process that considers all relevant factors, chose the simple expedient of accepting an average number of officers as being the desirable number of officers.

Amateurish Guess

This practice is dangerous under best conditions where comparable communities exist. When the consultant merely "clutches" at a similarity by using "an average of cities of 25,000 to 50,000 population" it could be suicide.

The City of Kingston need not have hired consultants to obtain these recommendations. Any librarian could have located the statistics in government reports. A good librarian would also note the reports caution against using its statistics as the consultants have.

You cannot compare Police and Fire agencies in two cities merely because both have about the same number of residents.

Professional police administrators consider population totals to be a relatively minor factor in discovering the need for police service. The New York City Police Department (Hazard Plan) considers population totals as contributing only 5% toward the total (100%) need for police service. The management consultants recommendation on Kingstons police and fire manpower needs is a valueless amateurish guess that may cause considerable harm to the development of professional standards in both agencies.

Gun Training

Editor, The Freeman:

In view of the recent attempts on the life of President Ford, and the crime situation in general, both directly related to the gun problem, the bill currently before congress is almost unbelievable. H.R. 9067 proposes to turn over nearly sixteen million dollars in excise funds to teach American youngsters to use guns.

If there is anything we don't need at this point in time it's still more gun-happy kids looking for something — or someone — to shoot. It is hard to believe that there is not a better use for an amount this size than that of subsidizing the National Rifle Association. It is equally hard to believe that the American public would countenance such action IF THEY WERE AWARE OF IT.

Sincerely,

Misimpressions

Editor, The Freeman:

In a press release I sent you which was printed in your paper of September 25, 1975, a mistake of fact was made which I wish to correct. The article indicated that our citizens committee had recommended that a detour road be built around the site of the Traver Hollow Bridge but that the Town Board had rejected that suggestion.

In my release, I believe I stated that the committee had looked into various alternatives. "One of these was the building of a temporary road around the site of the closed bridge." The members of the committee hoped to make this recommendation to the entire town board and we recommended that they meet with us at a future time. Since the Board chose not to meet with us and to this date no meeting has been held, this recommendation has never been officially given to the Town Board.

I wish to apologize to the members of the committee and to the town board for any misimpressions the residents of Olive may have gotten from the article.

I also would like to say, as I did in my original release, that the other members of the citizens committee were Councilman Tosi, Andrea Moran, Bobby Brueckner, Walk John, and Dino Guiliano.

Cordially yours,
RICHARD P. COOP.

To Area Super Markets".

We have been aware that the food chains are planning to install computerized check-out scanning machines in the near future. While this has been represented as progress for both the store management and the public, in our estimate this new system has a serious disadvantage for the consumer. The machine will be programmed to read a coded price, but the item will no longer have a price label affixed to it that the customer can read. It is to this feature that we, as a consumer organization strongly object.

Comparing prices is an important necessity during this period of ever-rising prices and shrinking pay-checks. Unless the product has a price tag on it, it will be impossible for the shopper to shop wisely. In addition, the computer will be programmed to register an increase in price which could go into effect from the time the product is taken from the shelf to the check-out and the consumer will have no way of knowing that the price has gone up unless he or she has a phenomenal memory.

Therefore, we believe it essential that the food chains continue to place the prices on all commodities. Inasmuch as the cost of these computers will in the long run be borne by the consumer it is only fair that the consumer not be penalized further. This is to inform you that our organization will suggest that consumers do not patronize stores which do not affix price labels on their products.

Very truly yours,

'Kaye' Quick Responds to a Response on Pay Issue

KINGSTON Kathleen "Kaye" Quick, Democrat-Conservative candidate for the U.C. Legislature from the City of Kingston replied today to a statement made by the six Republican candidates for U.C. Legislature concerning her request that a resolution be presented and adopted at the October meeting of the U.C. Legislature that no salary increase be included in the 1976 budget for the 33 Legislators.

Mrs. Quick stated that it "shocked her" that the "six Republican candidates for the U.C. Legislature would release a statement full of so many fallacies and inaccuracies."

"My six Republican opponents would like the public to believe that I opposed legislator raises in the 1973 budget while not opposing alderman raises in the same year because of my husband being an alderman. This they know is a total fallacy. If my Republican opponents wanted to speak the truth, they would have told you that myself nor no one else could have opposed a pay increase for alderman that year because the aldermen neither requested nor received a pay increase in their 1973 budget," she said.

Mrs. Quick said that in 1972 she was indeed active as a private citizen along with many other concerned citizens in attending the public hearing on the 1973 County Budget. Mrs. Quick said she would remind her opponents that the "Finance Committee of the U.C. Legislature came in with recommendations for exorbitant and shocking pay increases for the U.C. Legislature in the 1973 budget. They recommended that the chairman receive a $4,500 per year increase, majority leader $3,000 per year increase, minority leader $2,800 per year increase and the 30 Legislators a $2,000 per year increase.

"Because of the opposition of many concerned citizens, including myself, at this public hearing, the legislature reconsidered their exorbitant request and voted on the following increases: chairman increase was trimmed from $4,500 to $1,238 per year, majority leader from $3,000 to $600 per year, minority leader from $2,800 to $611 per year and Legislator from $2,000 to $495."

Mrs. Quick goes on to ask her six Republican opponents where they were at this time. "Unlike them, I did not wait until I was a candidate for a public office to become involved," she said.

Mrs. Quick also scored her opponents for "trying to lead the public to believe that it was the Common Council who took two consecutive pay raises within two years, where in fact it was the Ulster County Legislature who received a pay increase in their 1973 budget and again another raise in their 1974 budget." Mrs. Quick suggested that her six Republican opponents "should check their facts before issuing irresponsible news releases. The public deserves the courtesy of the truth from all candidates running for public office."

"My six Republican opponents have also said that my request to the 33 members of the Ulster County Legislature to present and pass a resolution at their October meeting asking that the Finance Committee not include any pay raises in the 1976 budget was an 'amateurish probe for publicity'. Instead they suggest that I should have just contacted Mr. Savago, as they have done, and ask him his personal feelings about pay raises. This is the most ridiculous suggestion I have ever heard of. Obviously my six Republican opponents know very little about County government."

"Let me point out to them that it is the 33 legislators as a body who have the final say as to what raises, if any, they will receive in the 1976 budget," she said.

Election . . . 1975 ★

Selinger in Defense of Miller

SAUGERTIES Michael Selinger, Democratic town campaign coordinator, defended the party's supervisor candidate Paul Miller against charges of being a "ghost writer" for other candidates leveled by GOP Chief Michael Catalinotto.

"The Republican chairman's comments are, as usual, ridiculous and unfounded. I always felt that lawyers refrained from making assumptions where there is no basis in fact. It seems here we have the exception. This is the type of campaigning the Republicans enjoy, they by-pass the issues and attack people," Selinger said.

Selinger also noted that "Mr. Catalinotto obviously misunderstood our objectives to his label-pinning. We feel he is again sounding his false alarm of radicalism. Mr.

Catalinotto has underestimated the intelligence of the Saugerties voter."

"Radicals," said Selinger, "do not come within a handful of votes of getting the Conservative endorsement. And I am sure the Conservatives would resent the statement that they came close to backing a radical. The strong support Paul Miller received at the Conservative caucus indicated that they didn't see him as a radical. So let's drop these tactics; they don't cut it."

Selinger went on to say that "perhaps Catalinotto speaks so often for his candidates, is that their efforts resemble the try-outs for Ted Mack's Amateur Hour. For example, Mr. Greco promised that, if elected, he will use his personal business contacts to bring light industry to Saugerties. Who are those mystical personal business contacts? Mr. Greco stated if he won, he would utilize them, purportedly for the benefit of Saugerties, what if he doesn't win, then he won't use them? And lastly, if he did use these personal business contacts as town supervisor, would that constitute a conflict of interest on his part? Judging from last year's State Assembly race, that wouldn't be too popular with the voters," Selinger stated.

The Democratic Town coordinator concluded by urging the public to carefully scrutinize what the Republican Party has promised through the years.

Greco Speaks to GOP Club

SAUGERTIES Town of Saugerties Republican Club met at the Flamingo Restaurant and heard Republican-Conservative candidate for town supervisor Frank Greco discuss his views on managing Saugerties town government.

Greco stated that he has accepted the challenge to run for the office of supervisor because "Saugerties has been good to me and my family and that I feel I owe it a debt of gratitude." He said that his many years experience in business and government management and administration qualify him to handle the office of supervisor to the overall benefit of the townspeople of Saugerties.

C. Freeman Lasher, county legislature Conservation Committee chairman, reported on this year's stream improvement program under the "new Democratic regime in Albany," as compared to last year, stating that "no co-operation has been forthcoming this year from Albany."

County Legislator Clifford Snyder discussed the welfare situation. He urged everyone to write to their state and federal legislators, asking them to do something about the state and federally-mandated programs which are "strangling the efforts on the home front to cope with the situation of welfare."

Legislator Charles Scala told of his proposed resolution regarding the county assuming the welfare costs of the 20 towns, in order to lift some of the burden of the skyrocketing costs to the towns at the present time.

Town Councilman Clarence Gardner gave a complete report on the dog warden's activities for the past month.

Students Karen Stinemire and Nicholas Schelling, who spent a week at D.E.C. Camp DeBruce this summer, sponsored by the club, were guests at the meeting. They both spoke enthusiastically of the many subjects dealing with the environment that they had learned about, of the many friends they made, and of the counselors who conducted the activities to make their week of environmental education an enjoyable one.

Town Committee Chairman Michael Catalinotto reported on the progress of the election campaign, stating that Town Committee Vice-Chairman Paul Pavlovich has been named campaign manager, with Wilson Edmunds and George Leombruno campaign coordinators.

Reports were also given by Thyra Taylor, community events coordinator for the candidates; Florence Snyder, Ways and Means Chairman, and Scala, who together with Jennifer Peetoom was co-chairman of the Family Day Picnic recently.

The next meeting will be held on Thurs., Oct. 16 at Doggie's Place, starting at 8 p.m. This meeting will feature the candidates for town office and will be preceded by a spaghetti dinner at 6:30 p.m., for which reservations should be made with Mrs. Joseph Crotty. All enrolled Republicans, club members and their guests are welcome at both the meeting and the dinner.

Mones' Track Record

KINGSTON

Mel Mones cites his three recent terms in the Ulster County Legislature as an "established track record" proving his "ability to handle complex problems and represent Kingston effectively."

The pharmacist pointed to his work on legislative committees and the fact he introduced legislation establishing the county recreation and parks system; an office for consumer protection; study on solid waste disposal; study for senior citizen housing; and increased staff and facilities for the mental health center.

He voted for the new county infirmary and county jail, as well as recognition of the CSEA as the official bargaining group for county employees.

The Republican, with Conservative Party backing, noted that "all this was done while the county tax rate was actually lowered for five of those six years."

Says GOP Gaining Publicity on Bridges

BOICEVILLE
Seven Town of Olive Republicans were accused today of using a town crisis to gain publicity by Andrea Moran, Democratic candidate for the County Legislature.

"The closing of the Traver Hollow Bridge is potentially a matter of life and death," she said. "We should all be working together to get it reopened. Instead five elected town and county officials, all Republicans, have chosen to act privately rather than in the governmental capacity. Since July various people have requested that the town take action. Yet Supervisor (Oliver) Crawford refused saying nothing could be done. As a result of such inept leadership Councilman Peter Tosi requested the establishment of a Citizens Committee and he asked for volunteers from the audience. Six people, including himself, agreed to serve: Richard Cooper, Robert Brueckner, Wallace John, myself and Dino Guiliano." "The reopening of the bridge is a complicated matter," Mrs. Moran stated. "The committee met on a number of occasions after the members had conferred with NYC officials, lawyers, engineers and consulting engineers. In short, we did our homework. We got information and we made plans and we did it for all the people of the town."

"The Committee then recommended to the Town Board at the Sept. 2, 1975 meeting that the town go on record and officially accuse the city of being in violation of the Water Supply Act of 1905 and that lawsuit be considered. The committee asked to meet with the town board to further discuss proposals."

"But shortly thereafter," she said, "five elected government officials, the chairman of the Olive Republicans and Dino Guiliano filed a law suit as private citizens."

"That lawsuit has received a lot of publicity," Mrs. Moran said, "but very little of it has been favorable. Most people want to know why the town board didn't sue the city in July or August through the town attorney instead of having elected officials suing privately six weeks before election. Most people think this is a sad attempt to get political headlines and that it backfired. I think those people are correct," she concluded.

Better Protection

KINGSTON
Clarence (Dubby) Raichle, Republican candidate for alderman in the First Ward, has called for "more and better fire protection in the uptown section of Kingston and especially in the First Ward."

The former supervisor and county legislator maintains that "with the tremendous increase in human beings employed in new industrial and commercial establishments as well as hundreds of families in new home establishments that the attitude extended for the well-being of these same people has been nothing short of shameful."

Raichle contends that the problem of uptown fire protection should be the most important issue in this year's mayoral campaign and "as the candidate for alderman in the First Ward I am now asking both the Republican and Democratic candidates for mayor to come out and express their feelings and direction in this serious matter."

GOP Grand Opening

KINGSTON
Albert Spada, chairman of the Ulster County Republican Committee, announced today that the grand opening of the new County Republican Headquarters at 240 Clinton Avenue in Kingston is scheduled for Friday, Oct. 3.

In attendance will be a number of Republican candidates seeking re-election.

Farm Bureau Annual Fete

PLATTEKILL Howard Ringholm, assistant vice president of Farm Credit Banks, was guest speaker at the Ulster County Farm Bureau's annual meeting held recently at the Villa Nueva in Plattekill.

Ringholm and Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey, along with their wives were guests of honor at the dinner, attended by 114 persons.

The bureau adopted two new resolutions presented by Henry Paul Jr. of Hurley and Albert Angelillo Jr. of Clintondale. The meeting was adjourned with an award of reimbursement of 1976 membership dues to Mr. and Mrs. Eugene McCoy of Ardonia.

Sheriff Lauds TV Donation

KINGSTON The donation of eight television sets to the Ulster County Jail by the Ulster County Bar Association is apparently working out well.

"I think it's great," said Sheriff Thomas F. Mayone of the black and white television sets which have been in use at the jail since last month. "It helps keep the tension down and keeps the inmates occupied. There is no chance of them just sitting around in the cells building up frustration."

The eight television sets are mounted so that one is visible from each cellblock at the jail, Mayone said.

KINGSTON Several appointments have been announced by Legislature Chairman Peter J. Savago (R-Dist. 8).

Named to the Labor-Management Committee are William R. West (R-Dist. 4),

The purchase of the television sets by the Ulster County Bar Association was made possible by a $2,000 planning-chairman; Charles Scala Jr. (R-Dist. 1), Thomas W. Roach Jr. (R-Dist. 8), Dr. Gerald P. Gorman, minority leader of the legislature (D-City) and Louis M. Klein (D-Dist. 6).

The new committee is an outgrowth of a county agreement made with the Ulster County Civil Services Employees Association.

Savago also appointed Donald Bruyn, a member of the Ulster County Environmental Management Council, as chairman of the council.

BROWN

County Dems, GOP Re-Elect Brown, Spada

KINGSTON Democrats and Republicans in Ulster County re-elected their respective party chairmen Harold Brown and Albert Spada during the past week and named two new vice chairmen to fill vacancies.

Both Brown and Spada were unopposed in their bid to lead their parties but a contest emerged for a vice chairmanship in the Democratic Party with Rose Hogan of Kingston edging out Jane Chodaba of Saugerties for the post vacated by Kathleen (Kaye) Quick.

Mrs. Hogan, a former vice chairman who lost to Mrs. Quick the last time out, beat Mrs. Chodaba by a vote of 94 to 31 with two lanks.

The convention was held at George Washington School

Also elected were Eleanor Ruc ci of Marlletown as secretary, to seek reelection Ralph Kulseng of New Paltz was son of Kingston who declined elected treasurer succeeding John Bonilla of Woodstock who declined to run.

$115 Thousand Supreme Court Settlement

KINGSTON A $115,000 settlement was reportedly reached in Ulster County Supreme Court chambers recently in a $2 million auto negligence suit brought by Caroline Bonelli of Saugerties on behalf of her teenage daughter, Pauline.

According to court testimony, the girl was "rendered a vegetable" as the result of a two car accident Dec. 17, 1972 on East Chester Street Ext., Kingston.

Defendants in the action were Miss Bonelli's cousin, William Bonelli, LCTN Auto Leasing Corp. and Calvin J. Park of Poughkeepsie.

The settlement came mid-way through a second trial. The first ended when Judge Arthur Davis declared a mistrial last April after a five man, one woman jury deliberated more than 10 hours and was reportedly deadlocked by a vote of four to two.

Miss Bonelli was a passenger in the Bonelli car when it was in collision with the auto leasing company car driven by Park.

In addition to the $115,000 settlement, another settlement of $50,000 was reportedly made by an insurance company prior to the first trial.

Mrs. Bonelli was represented by Harold Kozupski. Arthur Breman was counsel for the defendants with the exception of William Bonelli who did not choose to have counsel. Supreme Court Justice Harold Hughes presided.

The GOP, which met at the George Washington School, elected June Davidson of the Town of Olive as its new vice chairman replacing Mrs. Sally Brimmer who submitted her resignation. Re-elected to serve another term were two other vice chairmen — Edwin Callahan, Town of Ulster and Charles Penney of Shawangunk. Also named for another term were William Collins, of Marlboro, treasurer and Clarence Anderson, of West Hurley, secretary.

LIFE TODAY

'Stone Circle' Set in Pioneer Wilderness

Homesteading Blacksmith Reverts to 1800 Lifestyle
In Attempt to Promote 'Environmental Awareness'

The Bloyds, who have been working on their Mt. Tremper homestead since April, have no desire to create a big farm. "Just a close to self-sufficient, small farm that will provide most of our individual needs for food and shelter as a family," Winnie Bloyd holds one of the chickens from the corral.

By Tobie Geertsema MT. TREMPER Still stamped with the mark of youth in the 1800's, ours was a raw, new land. A land of wild, rugged scenery and potential farmland fringed by the interminable forest. Then the land was a magnet that drew men and lured them onward To seek refuge from economic storms amidst nature's abundance; stripping off civilization's garments to put themselves in the teepees and log cabins of the Cherokee and Iroquois; planting food; accepting the conditions the frontier furnished as they transformed a small part of the wilderness. Theirs was a homesteading life that disappeared when towns began to burgeon. But it was the environmental theory of their lifestyle that shaped the American character through the frontier. One such homestead, as it might have looked in 1830 in its forested setting, exists today in the close less of the woods 10 miles from the heart of Woodstock village. Here, as the frontier settlers did, Joe Bloyd, his wife, Winnie, and their daughter, Tara, are proving anew that the frontier was — and still is — productive of individuality.

At STONE CIRCLE, the name given their homesteading essential living project, the Bloyds are proving anew that the frontier was—and still is —productive of individuality.

Living in a clay-floored teepee, planting food in a "pick axe and rock" garden, carrying water from a spring-fed stream, tending to animals in a corral built of sapplings, they are exhibiting the same versatility and practical ingenuity that was a necessity when settlers were few and far between and pioneers worked small farms on a frontier of empty land. Soon, however, with logs cut from the land, a cabin will be built to replace the teepees. The barnyard will be enlarged and the garden extended. But the Bloyds, who have been working on their Mt. Tremper homestead since April, have no desire to create a big farm. "Just a close to self-sufficient, small farm," says Joe, "that will provide most of our individual needs for food and shelter as a family." Even so, the Bloyds have other goals in mind for STONE CIRCLE, the name they have given their homesteading and essential living project. In addition to building an environmental homesteading program—using natural resources as opposed to manufactured products—they are dedicated to creating an outdoor educational center that will be opened to the public.

Through a library-information center and periodic workshops, they hope to revive and preserve many of the skills and much of the knowledge once common to people who depended on them for their life and livelihood. "To bring about a greater understanding of the environment," says Joe, "We hope to provide a place where people can come and see the parts of our past and heritage still in practical use for the everyday life of our own family." And people have come already (to a recent open house) to watch Winnie at her basket weaving; Joe and resident blacksmith Bruce Vizino produce hinges, pokers and hooked racks at a rustic, stone and tree trunk framed blacksmith shop in the woods. In the near future, workshops will be offered in candle and soap making, food preservation, blacksmithing, gardening, maple sugar making, spinning and weaving, foraging for wild plants and herbs. And, with the establishment of a library-research center, books, pamphlets, magazines, a slide show and film strips will offer information on homesteading in the past and the present.

"To bring about a greater understanding of the environment, we hope to provide a place where people can come and see the parts of our past and heritage still in practical use for the everyday life of our own family."

As the Bloyds see it, STONE CIRCLE is one means of "promoting environmental awareness." Says Joe, "We just want to try to create a little better understanding on an individual basis of our relationship with our environment —and the dependency we have with it just for the basic necessities of life... the air we breathe, the water we drink. It has come down to each one of us taking stock of our lives and the way we live." The way Joe and Winnie Bloyd live is as close to possible as the way life was lived when ours was a raw, new land—still stamped with the mark of youth. A homesteading life of small farms with fields of grain and virgin timber to be logged to make room for corn and cattle. With the same strength and inquisitiveness of the pioneers, they are accepting the conditions the frontier furnished; taking and individual responsibility for their actions and the effect of those actions on the surrounding environment. To visit them at Stone Circle in a pioneer wilderness setting adjacent to 1,000 acres of state land is to return to the past. And visitors are welcome for blacksmithing, for reflecting on our past. To visit or attend workshops, write Stone Circle, Whittenberg Road, Mt. Tremper, N.Y., 12457.

With logs cut from the land, a cabin will be constructed to replace the clay-floored teepee in which Bloyd, his wife and daughter now live. Here, Bloyd cuts barks off a foundation post for the house he is building.

Joe Bloyd, his wife Winnie and their daughter Tara by the corral gate.

Tending the animals in the goat and chicken corral, planting food, carrying water from a spring-fed stream, Bloyd exhibits the same versatility and practical ingenuity that was a necessity when settlers were few and far between and pioneers worked small farms on a frontier of empty land.

Lefooters Dance and Workshop Set For Friday

Lefooters Square Dance Club will hold its regular dance Friday at Hurley Reformed Church, off Route 209. All club-level dancers are welcome. This week, the square dancing will be preceded by a "Round of the Month Workshop" to be taught by Olin and Eleanor McSorley. It will begin promptly at 7:30 p.m. Caller for the evening will be Ed Joyner. Joyner has called for Lefooters several times in the last few years, and has been calling square dances for the last eight years. He is currently club caller and instructor for four clubs: The Sleepy Hollow Squares of Valatia; The Apple Valley Squares of Claverack; The Down County Squares of Great Barrington, Mass.; and the Pioneer Valley Squares of Westfield, Mass. He is also on the staff at the House of Roth in Nova Scotia, where he calls and teaches.

Joyner has called for several years for various teen clubs and is the sponsor for the Peach Blossom Festival in Canajoharie.

Married to the former Dorothy Hunt, he is the father of five children, ages 12 through 20. He is a carpenter by trade.

On Monday evenings, starting Oct. 6, there will be an Angel Workshop from 7 to 8 p.m. The workshop will have two goals: an accelerated review of the 75 basics for club members who have not been dancing for some time, and a weekly schedule to keep dancers abreast of the current calls. There will be a small fee for the workshop. All those interested are invited to attend.

Popular Local Personalities in Freeman Fashion Show

By Dorothy A. Narel

LAWRENCE QUILTY

MICHAEL PAGLIARO

MAXINE GOODHEIM

DAVID DITTMAN

Ask a busy person to help out a "cause" and the answer will be "yes." That's the case with the upcoming Freeman Fashion Premiere scheduled for Monday, Oct. 13, at 7:30 p.m. in the auditorium of Kingston High School.

The United Way benefit will spotlight Larry Quilty, Sam Fratoni, Michael Pagliaro and David Dittman as well as top entertainers Maxine Goodheim and Bonnie Perlmutter.

Everyone knows when Quilty appears on stage, there are going to be laughs. A popular MC, Mr. Quilty, president of Quilty Insurance and president of the board at SUNY in New Paltz, has consistently given of his talents.

David Dittman of West Hurley, an executive with Hercules Inc., has also taken on the task of campaign chairman for the United Way Drive. He will be stepping front and center in the latest in attire for men. Joining him will be IBM's popular Sam Fratoni who is also working closely with United Way on this year's campaign. Michael Pagliaro, personnel director of Kingston Hospital and president of the board at Gateway Industries, a member agency of United Way, has also consented to volunteer his time and effort to the Freeman benefit show.

As for the entertainment portion, two talented women will be doing take-offs on campaign for funds. The musical skits are comical and should prove to be another highlight the evening of October 13. The performers will be Maxine Goodheim, a professional nightclub entertainer, and Bonnie Perlmutter, who prior to her marriage, appeared professionally as Bonnie Brown doing song and dance routines throughout the Catskills.

Tickets at $3.50 per person are now available from The Freeman.

Kingston Hospital Auxiliary Activities

Mrs. John McCullough, president, announced several upcoming activities at the fall general membership meeting of the Auxiliary of Kingston Hospital.

A class for Candystrippers will begin during the first week in October. Girls 14 years of age or older are eligible to the training program and are asked to contact Mrs. Ralph Biche, Director of Volunteers at Kingston Hospital. Miss Marguerite Myers is chairman of the program.

On Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 12, the Auxiliary will sponsor a card party at Hurley Reformed Church. Mrs. Wilbur Peters, chairperson, and Mrs. Louis Salzmann, co-chairperson, have extended an invitation to the entire community to participate in this event which will feature a Bicentennial theme. A babysitting service will be available.

Mrs. Ralph Biche praised the work of the volunteers who perform "in hospital" service, and presented volunteers with recognition pins and awards for hours of service. A special award was given to Mrs. John Salapatis for 2762 hours of in-hospital service. Other volunteers receiving awards included: Mrs. Alden Robinson, Mrs. Warren Simmons, and Mrs. Henry Singer, 1000 hour pins; Mrs. Samuel Goldberg, Mrs. William Hobbs, Mrs. V. ## Local Student on TV Commerical

Allen Jones, eleven year-old-son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jones of Park Drive, Woodstock, has been busy filming two national television commercials and going to auditions in New York City for his personal managers, Estelle & Alfonso.

He will be seen in the forthcoming Town Talk Bread, also Wonder Bread television commercials, both shot outdoors. Allen acted in a few scenes with three other boys who tried to tackle him, and in a solo scene. The work is not too difficult for Allen who has the necessary personality to capture the attention of the advertising agencies, and the talent to act which he receives from his weekly drama classes. He also studies jazz and voice which are often requirements for certain commercials.

Allen is a regular commuter to Poughkeepsie where he attends classes at Estelle & Alfonso's. He appeared in their recent production of "Annie Get Your Gun."

Mighty Muhammad Remains King of the Hill

ALI LUNGES AT FRAZIER DURING 10TH ROUND

Ali: 'I Still Reign Supreme'

MANILA (UPI) — Pounding Joe Frazier into such a lumpy pulp that he could barely see or even think any longer, mighty Muhammad Ali retained his world heavyweight title Wednesday with a bloody, bruising 14th round technical knockout which he said might have been his last fight.

"I still reign supreme," shouted Ali after the bout. "I told you I was the greatest. Didn't I tell you I was superior?"

With still one round to go, before a sellout crowd of 25,000 at the Philippine coliseum and a worldwide television audience estimated at 700 million people, Frazier's manager-trainer, Eddie Futch, threw "the towel" for his badly battered battler.

"Frazier couldn't see," Futch said, referring to the challenger's puffed up eyes, the right one almost completely shut by Ali's hammer-like blows to the face. "Joe had two bad rounds in a row and had we continued we could have been seriously hurt."

At that point, Ali agile and alert although two years older than Frazier, was leading in the cards of the three Filipino fight officials. Referee Carlos Padilla Jr., a former child movie actor, had him ahead 66-60, Judge Alfredo Quiazon put him at 67-62 and the other judge, Larry Nadayag scored it 66-62 for Ali.

Talking later unmarked except for a slight swelling on his right eye, Ali paid tribute to his opponent, whom he has now beaten twice in three encounters. "He's great, greater than I thought," Ali said, bare-chested with only a towel wrapped around his neck and padding around on his socks. "If I took the punches he took, I would have quit long ago."

Ali said he was so tired and sore all over, all he wanted to do was do nothing for the next week except rest.

"There's a great possibility fellas this may be my last fight. There's a great possibility you've seen the last of Ali," he said.

After fighting Ali toe to toe in the first 11 rounds, Frazier simply wilted and became an easy prey for the champion's vicious combination left hooks and right straights. At the end of the 14th round, Futch signaled the referee to stop the fight.

Ali described it as the toughest fight of his three encounters with Frazier. And it also took its toll on the champion who fell on his back from sheer exhaustion and the press of people who crowded him in the ring after he was declared winner.

Ali came in at 224 1/2 pounds, nine pounds heavier than Frazier's 215 1/2 during the official weighin and the champion said he needed the extra poundage for extra energy for a prolonged ring battle.

The 25,000 crowd, among them the Philippine President and Mrs. Ferdinand E. Marcos, during the fight set a new boxing attendance record, according to the promoters as did the gate receipts. The match was televised to more than 60 countries, including the Soviet Union which linked up for satellite coverage for the first time.

Ken Norton, the ex-marine who is the only man to beat Ali besides Frazier said he was ready to challenge the champion as soon as possible.

But Ali said if he ever fights again at all, which would be his last one before finally retiring, it would have to be against the winner of an elimination bout between Norton and George Foreman, the man from whom he wrested the heavyweight title last year in Zaire.

But in another fickle statement, he also said in reply to a question that he was willing to give Frazier a return match.

The champion, a Black Muslim, said he wants to quit while he is relatively unscarred, undefeated as champion and wealthy so he could devote his services fulltime as an Islamic preacher and philanthropist.

"I wanna get out now while I'm well invested. I have 3 to 4 million dollars in government bonds. I have a nice family. I have a nice farm. I have a nice mansion I'll be working on my ministry," he said. "Boxing is a hard fight."

Ali's immediate travel plans were not known although he had said previously he would return to the United States two days after the fight to attend a "Muhammad Ali Day" in New Orleans.

FRAZIER REACTS TO HARD RIGHT

Stand-Up Strategy Cost Joe the Fight

BY MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Editor

MANILA (UPI) — Joe Frazier is, always has been and probably always will be a stand-up guy, and that as much as anything else, cost him the fight.

He's so stand-up that even though he wanted nothing more than to lay his weary, battered body down somewhere after the beating he took from Muhammad Ali here Wednesday morning (Tuesday night in the U.S.A.), he still honored a commitment by showing up at a postfight "victory party" for him, which had been arranged by someone else originally.

Joe Frazier had said he'd come win or lose. Hurting as he was, he still kept his word. He always does.

It was a completely different stand-up that lost the fight for him, though.

The strategy his trainer-advisor, Eddie Futch, had outlined for the 31-year-old challenger was basically simple. Keep the pressure on Ali and stay down low.

Unfortunately, for him, Joe Frazier complied with only part of those pre-fight instructions.

He kept the pressure on Ali, boring in continually like some spinning top and usually paying for it dearly, but then he rendered Eddie Futch's fine advice useless by standing up straight as a yardstick instead of coming in low as he had been told.

If there was one mistake, one maneuver, that made Joe Frazier a perfect target for Muhammad Ali's long and deadly left hand, this was it.

Eddie Futch concurred completely. "Joe's attempt to entice Ali into a slug-fest match was the biggest mistake he made," said great Futch, as sharp a ring analyst as there is in all boxing today.

"He stood up straight when he should've been low. I understand why he did it. He wanted to entice the other fellow to punch him so he could get in his own punches more easily. By standing up straight like he did, he made himself more of a target. We told him 'don't stand up, don't stand up, but he did. I'd say that more than anything else, lost the fight for him.'"

It was Futch who signalled the referee, Carlos Padilla Jr., of the Philippines, that he didn't want Frazier to continue any longer at the end of the 14th round. The challenger had absorbed a wicked beating from the 12th through the 14th. One eye was almost completely shut and the other half closed. Futch realized Frazier could be seriously hurt even if there were only three more minutes left.

Eddie Futch did the right thing. He knew Ali, across the ring in the other corner was dead tired, too. But as a conscientious trainer, his primary concern was for his own fighter.

It was only after being awarded a TKO at the end of the 14th that Ali realized how miserable he felt himself at that juncture.

"What you saw tonight," he said, confusing the morning for the evening, "was something next to death. A hard fight is next to dying. In the 14th round, you wanna throw up, you wanna die, you hurt so much. Your hands hurt, your side hurts, your everything hurts. I almost quit after the 10th round, but I am the champion. Champions don't quit."

Tell you something about Joe Frazier. I can't take nothing from him. He's the toughest man in the world. I didn't realize he was so great.

Frazier: 'I Just Couldn't See'

MANILA (UPI) — The right eye was half shut. The left eye was in even worse shape, only an eighth of an inch from being closed all together.

"I just couldn't see," mumbled Joe Frazier, not offering any excuse but simply turnishing a reason why his trainer Eddie Futch told referee Carlos Padilla Jr. Wednesday's heavyweight title fight was over at the end of the 14th round and Muhammad Ali was still champion.

There was a lump on the left side of Frazier's head and another one under his right eye. His face was like 10 miles of bad road and there was blood still caked on his lower lip. But the challenger was anything but crestfallen.

He had come into the area where the post-fight interview was held wearing dark glasses, but he removed them at the request of photographers and didn't appear at all self-conscious as the lensmen snapped away.

"I thought 'my man' fought a good fight," Frazier said graciously referring to Ali. "I wanted to keep going but Ed (Futch) always is the boss. Whatever he says goes. I wasn't happy about the fight being stopped, but like I say, I never argue with Ed. He means for my best."

Frazier, who now has lost twice to Ali in three fights, said he certainly would like to meet the champion again.

"If he'll give me another shot, I'd be glad to fight him again," said the 31-year-old challenger from Philadelphia.

There was little question that many in the crowd of 25,000 in the Philippine Coliseum were hoping Frazier would upset Ali. He was given a thunderous ovation when he entered the ring first in a navy blue robe, while Ali's entrance was marked with boos.

Upon leaving the ring, Frazier's face looked so bad that a number of ringsiders, seeing it close, recoiled in sympathy but Frazier brushed off his injuries.

"I feel good," said Frazier. "No problem. Tomorrow, it will be all good again."

Frazier has been boxing professionally for 10 years now. He said that he had no immediate plan to retire.

"I ain't thinking that way," he said. "I don't know what I'm gonna do in the immediate future but I'm gonna kick it around a little bit."

Frazier thought he was ahead going into the 12th round, the round in which Ali knocked the mouthpiece out of his mouth with a jolting left hook that loosened the challenger's teeth.

"I got a little careless in the later rounds," Frazier conceded.

Futch said his fighter grew careless much before the late rounds, standing up and presenting Ali with a perfect target when he should have met the champion lower down.

"Joe thought he could entice Ali to punch with him by standing up like he did," Futch explained. "That was a mistake. We told him to 'get down, get down' but he insisted on standing up and I think that mistake cost him the fight."

Upon reaching his dressing room after the fight, Frazier looked at Futch and the rest of his handlers and said to all of them, "I'm sorry I let all of you people down."

Frazier's round

TOE-TO-TOE IN 12TH

Ali's round

Round Ten: Ali connected with a right to Frazier's temple, driving the challenger away from him. Frazier was right after him and tied him up. From back on the ropes Ali scored with four short rights to Frazier's head, then augmented them with a flashy combination of lefts and rights that made Frazier back up. Ali retreated to the ropes again as Frazier worked on his midsection with left hooks. Ali hit Frazier with a left hook but Frazier came right back with a left hook of his own to the body. The right side of Frazier's face was swollen from the force of Ali's punches.

Ali's round

Round Eleven: Frazier scored with a left to Ali's midsection. Frazier then scored with a straight right to the jaw but Ali countered with a right to the face which hurt the challenger. He made Frazier blink and then made Frazier back up. Ali retreated to the ropes again as Frazier worked on his midsection with left hooks. Ali hit Frazier with a left hook but Frazier came right back with a left hook of his own to the body. The right side of Frazier's face was swollen from the force of Ali's punches.

Ali's round

Round Twelve: Ali hurt Frazier with short rights to the head. The challenger pushed the champion towards the ropes where the referee broke them. Standing in one corner, Ali pumped at least a half dozen lefts and rights to the head. Ali was unmarked but neither was he fighting up on his toes. Frazier connected with a series of left hooks with Ali on the ropes in the corner but seemed to be doing more damage with his left jab. He caught Frazier with two right hands to the face, then stung him again with a left to the jaw. Frazier counterpunched but his punches did not carry that much steam.

Ali's round

Round Thirteen: Ali knocked the mouthpiece out of Frazier's mouth with a right hand to the jaw, then punished him some more with a series of hooks to the head. Frazier was staggered with a short right to the jaw. He kept coming in, moving Ali back to the ropes. Frazier took a left and right to the head that rocked him back on his heels. His legs buckled but he bored back in and forced Ali to give ground. The challenger punched Ali with a short right to the jaw, lunging the ropes. Ali went on the offensive again, topping his left into Frazier's face but Frazier made good with a straight left to the mouth as the bell rang.

Ali's round

Round Fourteen: Ali hammered a right to Frazier's jaw moving the challenger back. Frazier landed a left high on the champion's shoulder whereupon Ali began to dance and punished Frazier with three lefts into his face and two rights to the jaw. ## Duran Scores

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (UPI) — Lightweight champion Roberto Duran of Panama hammered out a unanimous but unpopular decision in a 10-round non-title bout Tuesday night against hometown hero Edwin Viruet, a quick and non-aggressive performer.

Duran's victory was as certain as his punches were crisp, but the surprising toll house of more than 15,000 booed lustily for more than seven minutes after the decision was announced.

Judge Harry Lederman scored it 6-3-1 for Duran, judge Tony Castellano had it 5-4-1 and referee Pete Della marked it 6-2-2.

Duran won his 30th fight against one loss but it was the only seventh time he failed to knock out his opponent. Viruet took only his second loss in 25 fights with two draws.

All Viruet proved by his orthodox and sometimes silly tactics was that he was clever enough, fast enough and tough enough not to be knocked out. Viruet's left eye was puffy but he left no marks on Duran at all.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Veteran Mike Quarry scored a unanimous 10-round decision over Mike Rossman Tuesday night in Rossman's debut as a light heavyweight.

In two seasons of professional fighting, Rossman had built up a 22-1-1 record as a middleweight, but was no match for the more experienced Quarry.

Milton Richman, UPI Sports Editor

MANILA (UPI) — There was no way in the world to fool the old man.

Only a fool would try.

Casey Stengel was always a jump ahead. It was a faculty he developed as a young man, sharpened as a mature adult and held on tightly to until the end of his days.

He talked in circles a lot but that was strictly a coverup. Any time he had to make a point, he talked perfectly straight.

Casey knew his time was drawing near the last few months. This past summer when the Mets invited him to their annual Old Timers' Day gettogether, it was arranged for him to ride a chariot around the field in Shea Stadium.

His old driver who took to chauffeur him around when he managed the Mets was assigned to watch after him in the chariot so he wouldn't fall out and get hurt.

"This'll be my last ride," Casey told him. "I won't be back again." The old man always had a world of pride and a sense of not wishing to hurt anybody if he could possibly keep from doing so.

People constantly would ask him to name his all-time team, and he'd decline.

"Why make enemies?" he'd say privately. "I've seen so many great ones — Cobb, DiMaggio, Mantle, Williams, Musial — that I'd have to leave someone out, and maybe I wouldn't mean to."

Those who played for Stengel with both the Yankees and Mets always said he was much tougher to play for when the club was going well rather than when it was going poorly.

For a man who handled so many outstanding players, Stengel always had understanding for those who didn't have that much ability.

He readily acknowledged Phil Rizzuto as one of the finest shortstops he ever saw, for example, but he was no less charitable when he talked of another less celebrated shortstop he had with the Boston Braves by the name of Whitey Wietelmann.

"Never saw a man like him in my life," Stengel would say about him. "Wasn't the greatest hitter in the world but there was nothing he couldn't do with the glove. Very good man to his father, too."

Some of today's stars get miffed now and then when demands are made on them, but Stengel generally felt if anybody asked him for his time or his autograph, the least he could do was give it to them.

Being with him anywhere was an experience.

No matter where he went, he was sure to be recognized, and no matter who recognized him, with a wave, a greeting or maybe an old story, Casey in some manner would always give back in kind.

He never threw his money around, but he was anything but tight with a buck.

For years, he'd take care of many of his friends with world series' tickets, often getting stuck with money he shelled out.

"I don't mind that so much," he'd say, "but they ask you to deliver 'em, too."

Casey, or "Dutch" as he was known to old buddies, had a strong sense of duty.

I remember him coaching for the American Leaguers during one All-Star Game in Washington when John F. Kennedy was President.

Kennedy said he wanted to talk with Stengel and Casey came over to his box. The conversation threatened never to end, due mostly to Kennedy, not Stengel, and Casey, noticing he was needed on the coaching line, suddenly broke away, saying, "sorry, I gotta go now."

One thing about Stengel when he got together with old cronies, like the late Frankie Frisch, he could talk all night. He wouldn't mind having a few, either.

He was going strong with Frisch at Toot's Shor's old place in New York back in the 60's when he fell and broke his hip. Casey's wife, Edna, was angry about that.

"Everytime he gets together with that Frisch, it's trouble," she said. "Frisch was on the ship with us during our honeymoon, and it was the same thing."

Even over here, 12,000 miles from where he became one of his nation's most familiar figures and where the Filipino people are all stirred up about boxing now, not baseball, they talked about Casey's passing Tuesday.

"He was a man dedicated to what he did," said Candido Cruz, a 52-year-old Manila barber who has been reading about Casey Stengel for more than 25 years. "He was a good, honest man."

Indeed, he was.

Lakers Open Practice Minus Chamberlain

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Los Angeles Lakers held a regular practice Tuesday minus superstar Wilt Chamberlain, who says he will put in one year of playing for the team if they demand it.

Chamberlain's attorney, Seymour Goldberg, said despite his no-show Tuesday, the 7-foot-1 center still plans to appear at a Laker practice and will report to the team within the next few days so he can be a "free man."

But he will demand $450,000 to play, he added, which in what Chamberlain received is his last year playing for Los Angeles.

The 39-year-old star quit the Lakers two years ago to be player-coach of the San Diego Conquistadors of the American Basketball Association. However, the Lakers said they still had an option on his services and obtained a court order preventing him from playing basketball.

The question of Chamberlain's retirement came up last week when the New York Knicks asked the Lakers' permission to talk to him about playing for them.

If Chamberlain owes the Lakers another year, the Knicks would have to negotiate a deal with the Los Angeles club.

"However," Goldberg said, "we are trying to get a ruling from the league on exactly what is owed."

California Sports Inc., which owns the Lakers, said in a statement issued Monday, "Wilt Chamberlain owes the Lakers one year of playing services by way of the NBA option clause."

"The Lakers expect him to fulfill the terms of that option clause."

Casey: Baseball's Ambassador of Joy

By UPI

He was baseball's ambassador of levity, good will and, above all, joy.

Despite his seemingly eternal advanced age, he forever evoked the joys of youth and laughter. He once scolded an awe-struck rookie, Mickey Mantle: "What the hell do you think ... that I was born old?"

Tuesday, the day that Casey Stengel died in Glendale, Calif. at 85 years young, the players, associates and opponents who shared his joy which spread over 50 years of baseball, remembered the man they called 'the ole professor.'

"He enjoyed life to the fullest and all those who came in contact with him were inspired by his perpetual youth," said Gabe Paul, a one-time Stengel adversary and now president New York Yankees, the team for which Casey won 10 pennants in 12 years from 1949-60.

"I played for him when I was just 17 years old," remembered present Yankee manager Billy Martin. "He taught me just about everything I know about baseball. After all these years of knowing him — first as a player then as a friend — I feel like I've lost a father.

"In my eyes he was the greatest thing that ever happened to baseball."

In his final stint as a big league manager Stengel guided the infant New York Mets, a team he fondly called 'my amazins' and of whom he later uttered partly in jest and partly in despair: "Can't anybody here play this game?"

Ed Kranepool, last of those original Mets who, like Martin, was only a teenager when he first reported to the old man, recalled those years 1962-64. "He was a flamboyant, colorful and exciting man," said Kranepool. "He was only old as age goes. He was really young at heart and he could communicate with players young and old.

"I remember how he'd often doubletalk the writers and the TV-radio media, but when he wanted to get something over to us players, he knew how to make a point. For the most part, he took a lot of the pressure off us when we were so bad."

During his years as Yankee manager, Stengel became famous for his lineup juggling and was generally credited with perfecting the platoon system adopted by so many managers today. Two Yankee players most affected by that platooning were outfielders Gene Woodling and Hank Bauer.

"He was especially rough on me and Hank," said Woodling. "He got us mad and that's what he wanted. The madder he made us, the better we played. He knew Hank and I better than we thought he did. He made me a better ballplayer.

"Most managers know baseball but when it came to knowing people, Casey was far ahead of them. He knew when to stir his players up"

Added Bauer, the hard-nosed ex-Marine and one of four Stengel Yankees to go on to manage in the big leagues: "Stengel knew how to handle his pitching staff and infuse one or two young fellows into the lineup. It took a long time for the Yankees to grow old. Baseball is going to miss him, especially the press."

Elston Howard, the first black ever to play for the Yankees, recalled how Stengel eased his situation. "He told hotel managers he would not allow the team to stay in their establishment if I wasn't welcome too," said Howard. "I can't say enough about him because of what he did for me."

But perhaps the fondest remembrance of Stengel — and the one the old man would've loved best — came from Yankee shortstop great Phil Rizzuto, who seemed genuinely surprised to hear of Stengel's passing.

"I can't believe it," said Rizzuto, "I always thought that when God came to call him, Casey would talk him out of it."

His Famous Quotes

NEW YORK (UPI) — One of Casey Stengel's most memorable traits was his double-talking manner of speech, dubbed by the writers who traveled with him: "Stengelese."

As long as baseball lives, so too, will the memorable Stengel utterances. Here are some of them:

Of the New York Mets, the team he watched lose a record 120 games in their first season: "Can't anybody here play this game?"

Of Jay Hook, a young intellectual pitcher on that team: "He knows everything about a curve ball except how to make it do it."

Of Greg Goossen, another of those young Mets: "Right now, he's 20 years old and in 10 years he has a chance to be 30."

Of his contemporaries: "Most men my age are dead."

When once speaking of the late Ty Cobb, one of those contemporaries: "Ty Cobb, who is dead at the present time."

When once addressing a senate committee investigating baseball's possible monopoly: "I am in the baseball business and it has been run cleaner than was ever put out in 100 years at the present time."

To those who ever questioned him: "You could look it up."

Commenting on astronaut John Glenn's 1962 orbiting of the earth: "There is a fellow who could find me a nice vacancy to live in this club (the Mets) finishes last."

To a barber giving him shave during the time he was a second division manager with the old Boston Braves: "Make it a close shave but don't cut my throat. I may want to do that myself later on."

To an astounded Mickey Mantle after showing the great Yankee outfielder how to play the wall in Ebbets Field: "What do you think, that I was born old?"

To the same Mantle after the slugger had struck out and subsequently kicked the dugout water cooler. "It ain't the water cooler that's getting you out."

Upon meeting singer Robert Goulet: "That young fella has effeminate appeal—just like me."

Upon ending his managerial career because of a broken hip: "You can't go hobbling out to the mound and take a pitcher out with a cane."

Stengel Knew

GLENDAL, Calif. (UPI) — Casey Stengel seemed to see the end coming for some time before his death.

In his last public appearance, Stengel, who died of cancer Monday night at age 85, remarked that he had "something wrong inside me" in a classic example of "Stengelese" that the renowned baseball manager made famous.

"I am very delighted now I am still alive and shaking," Stengel opened a speech to a lunch for the Dodgers Old Timers' Club on Aug. 23. "I'm the only one left now that was with the Dodgers still alive at this here time when they started. I think what I have now—I think I'll be over it in a month or two—I think I have something wrong inside me and maybe it's going to my head."

Funeral services for Stengel, the top winning manager in the history of organized baseball, will be held Monday at 1 p.m. at the Church of the Reformation in Forest Lawn Memorial Park, where he will be buried in the Court of Freedom.

He will lie in state Sunday at the Scovern Mortuary. The family asked that instead of sending flowers, mourners make donations to the Association of Professional Baseball Players headquartered in Long Beach, Calif.

In his 55 years in baseball, Stengel played for five major league teams and managed four. As manager of the New York Yankees from 1949 to 1960 he won 10 American league pennants and seven world series, including five in a row.

He managed the New York Mets for five years until he quit on doctor's orders in 1965.

Ready for Convention

Among those involved in landing the New York State Conservation Council 1976 convention at the Granit were: (L-R) Fred Faerber, president of the Federated Sportsmen's Clubs of Ulster; Thomas W. Roach, Jr., chairman of the county legislature's convention committee; Arthur E. Wager, Council president; C. Freeman Lasher, a member of the convention committee; and John Florsch, Federation vice president.

ECAC Seeks to Drop Student-Athlete Form

HYANNIS, MASS. (UPI) — The 212-member Eastern College Athletic Conference overwhelmingly approved a resolution Tuesday urging the NCAA executive council to rescind the student-athlete affidavit immediately.

The members, attending their annual meeting, said the eight-page affidavit, which asks a great number of personal questions, was "too cumbersome to administer is probably illegal because it may violate the Privacy Act, adopted recently by Congress," said ECAC spokesman Richard Hussey.

The affidavit, to be administered individually by athletic directors, is used as a document proving the athlete's amateurism. Among other things, the affidavit asks if the student-athlete ever has been convicted of fraud or if recruitment violations were used to lure him to other colleges.

The ECAC recommendation, which could be taken up at the Oct. 4 meeting of the NCAA executive council, calls for a shorter affidavit that complies with the Privacy Act, introduced by Sen. James Buckley, R-N.Y.

The ECAC members, in a straw vote, also recommended to the NCAA that traveling football squad limits be increased "by as much as 20 per cent" from the present 48-player ceiling. The membership further recommended that the traveling and home squad limit be of equal number.

In other action, the membership created an ECAC Committee on Infractions to deal with violations by member schools. Don Russell, athletic director at Wesleyan (Conn.) University, was named chairman of the committee that includes the following athletic directors: Andy Geiger of Pennsylvania, Hal Westernman of Maine; Bill Moore of Central Connecticut and Ray Whispell of Muhlenberg.

The members also voted to maintain the present membership dues at $350 and to admit Drew University of Madison, N.J., and the University of Scranton to the ECAC.

Also passed were resolutions to rename ECAC headquarters in memory of Asa S. Bushnell, the organization's founder, and to oppose proposed legislation in several states that would legalize sports betting.

Long Road for Females

ALAMOSA, Colo. (UPI) — Women's sports have come a long way, but there's a long road ahead, according to coach Cathy Rush of the U.S. Women's basketball team.

"Things have changed, but when people talk about forming a pro women's team, there still isn't anyone in this country who knows who the top five women's players are," said Mrs. Rush who has coached the Immaculata College team to three consecutive national championships.

Mrs. Rush has come a long way herself, from a part-time high school coach who "fell into the Immaculata job more by chance and circumstances than design."

She applied for the job in hopes of getting away from fulltime teaching which supplemented her coaching pay and was almost rejected because she was only 23. Since then, she has been named women's coach of the year by a major sporting goods manufacturer (AMF).

Mrs. Rush said the U.S. Women's team job also came more by chance than design. Selected by the Olympic Committee from half a dozen applicants, Mrs. Rush almost turned down the post because of her family.

"It was a very special honor and I am really happy about it, but it has been draining on the family," she said, adding that her husband, a referee for the American Basketball Association, talked her into accepting the post.

"He volunteered to baby sit full time during the training camp and got time off from his job so he could be with me in Mexico City," said Mrs. Rush, who has two young sons.

The American team trained in Alamosa where the 7,544-ft altitude matches that of Mexico City — site for the Pan American games Oct. 12-26. The team also competed at the World Championships in Columbia Sept. 22-Oct. 4.

"I had the best players in the nation to work with and that's what every coach dreams of," she said. "But I don't think I would want to do it full time, it's too hard on my family."

Ulster and Dutchess: Old, Familiar Tune

By Steve Kane

STONE RIDGE
A year ago a powerful Ulster County Community College soccer team opened its season against Dutchess CC and became the shocked victim of a 2-2 tie. Tuesday the Senators began another season against the Falcons here, and the result was another 2-2 tie. But this one was without the shock.

"We are not that bad a team," said UCCC coach George Vizvary, "but that overwhelming talent is missing."

The Senators' talent vacuum twice allowed the Dutchess booters to climb back into a tie, once in each half. Rich Derella's shot 15 minutes into the second half had provided UCCC with a 2-1 lead, but the Falcons were able to regain their momentum and penetrate the Ulster defense 25 minutes later.

Segundo Zapater began the scoring for Ulster, finding the net at the 15 minute mark of the first half. Joe Burger got the equalizer later in the period on a disputed play in front of the Senators' goal.

A Falcon corner kick started the action. The ball drifted into a mob in front of the goal and was headed back up into the air. Burger drove it in for Dutchess.

The scoring:
U—Segundo Zapater, 15:00
D—Joe Burger, 34:00
U—Rich Derella, 15:00
D—Ed Williams, 40:00

Joe Nova Rims 32 In 'Y' Game

KINGSTON
Joe Nova rimmed 32 points and hauled in 16 rebounds to pace Tudoroff Brothers to a 91-58 victory over McDonald's in the YMCA "B" League. Steve Wiands added 23. Ron Mapes was high for McDonald's with 25 points and eight rebounds.

John Kuhn scored 20 points and Joe Spada had 17 to lead Downs Street Driving to a 79-72 win over Raggedy Jeans. Mike Sass hit 24 and Hugh Schrowang 21, with 20 rebounds for the Jeans. Joe Harrel had 15 points and 12 rebounds for Downs Street.

the score, but his technique upset Vizvary.

"It was a handball," the Ulster coach said. "The officials were out of position and didn't see it."

Still, it counted, and Ulster's sluggish front line couldn't get it back until Derella slipped a slow roller past a screened Dutchess keeper in the second half.

It was a lead UCCC was unable to maintain. Vizvary gave the Falcons credit for aggressiveness and hustle, a combination that paid off when Ed Williams broke through the UCCC defenders, drew goalie Chris Klingner out of the net, then booted the shot past him to deadlock the score. Dutchess stayed on the attack until time ran out to kill Ulster's hopes of another score.

Vizvary felt his squad needed further conditioning and lamented the lack of offensive punch. "Our forward line was at an all time low," he sighed, noting only a dozen shots-on-goal by the Senators in the entire contest.

Ulster will play the Oneonta St. junior varsity in an away game Sunday before returning to Mid Hudson Conference action against Orange CCC Wednesday.

An Easy Victory for Red Hook

RED HOOK

Mark Gravino of Red Hook and Lorenzo Simmons of New Paltz have had a couple of memorable UCAL cross country duels. Tuesday wasn't one of them.

Gravino hit the wire in 14:40, a minute and 48 seconds ahead of the New Paltz ace to lead the resurgent Raiders to a 19-44 victory.

In other UCAL results, Oneonta blitzed Walkill, 20-40, Pine Bush bombed Rondout, 15-48, Coleman stopped Ellenville, 15-48, Liberty outran Fallsburgh, 23-43, and Marlboro trimmed Highland, 17-39.

"I'm satisfied," said Red Hook coach Jim Cauldwell. "I was disappointed after the Coleman Invitational, but the kids decided to practice Sunday, and they were ready for this race."

third with 16:36 for the winners. The Raiders claimed seven of the first eight places.

Bryn Gabriel covered Walkill's 2.7 mile track in 14:20 to pace the OCS victory. The young Indians also made the future look good as junior Al Coonradt ran third, freshman Greg Drake took fourth and soph John Black was fifth.

Winning coach Bernie Stahl said, "I'm very pleased. We've made good progress." Leon Van Dusen took second for the Panthers in 14:32.

Sam Horton and Al Schmidt shared the first place honors for the Bushmen with identical times of 16:03. Bob Foss, Rich Jamison and Kevin Kremer made it a Pine Bush sweep.

Rondout's Bill Walsh grabbed sixth place in 17:06.

Tom Nee led five Coleman runners across the finish line as the Statesmen easily turned back Ellenville. Nee's time was 12:01.5, thirty seconds faster than teammate Jim Price. Coleman is 2-0 on the season.

Also 2-0 is Marlboro as Ed Bozdyaj (14:14) led the Dukes over Highland. Liberty was paced by Jason Wach (17:05).

SHS Harriers Win

KINGSTON

Saugerties and Kingston highs hit the DCSL cross country trail Tuesday with mixed results. The Sawyers pinned a 22-38 setback on home-standing Spackenkill; the Tigers dropped a 21-40 decision to Ketcham at Dietz Stadium.

"We didn't run as good as we should have," said Saugerties coach Ron Buzon. He was surprised that Ed Fitzmaurice of Spackenkill shipped home in first place.

Tom Miller, Alan Gardeski and Dennis Holmquist, however, locked up the next three places for the Sawyers, and the winners took seven of the first ten places. Fitzmaurice posted a winning 17:13 for the three miles to Miller's 17:24.

At Dietz, meanwhile, three runners charged to the finish of a 2.7 mile course in a near deadlock. Ketcham's Vince Veltre was a photo finish winner in 15:04 over teammate Matt Williams. Kingston's Bill Wilson stopped the clock in 15:04.5 for third place.

"Wilson really ran well," said KHS coach Dean Short who also had words of praise for Charlie Bevier. Bevier gave the Tigers a fourth with a 15:25 time.

Hawk Golfers Romp

NEW PALTZ — New Paltz St.'s Harry Cohn fired a medalist 85 Tuesday to lead the Hawks to a 16 1/2-11 1/2 victory over the Marist College golf team at the Huguenot Manor Country Club.

Cohn, like four of his teammates, swept all three points from his opponent. Frank Badone, Bob Kohut, Mitch Richman and Bob Donofrio also scored sweeps. Bob Gulemi posted a 107 to top Marist's Kevin Sommar by a stroke, but Sommar managed to split the Nassau to give the Red Foxes their only points.

Hawk coach Bill Odencal is expecting further improvement from his 1-2 squad at the ECAC tournament Friday at West Point. New Paltz will play in the SUNYAC championships Sunday at Cooperstown.

Ketcham Zips SHS; Setback for Tigers

SAUGERTIES

A close, well played soccer game turned against home-standing Saugerties High Tuesday when Ketcham's Pat Argay found the range in the second half and headed the winners to a 1-0 DCSL victory.

In another game, Roosevelt blanked Kingston, 3-0.

The deciding play began as a scramble deep in a Sawyer corner. Ketcham's Steve Twist took control of the ball and crossed a pass to two teammates in front of the Saugerties goal. Argay headed the shot past the outnumbered keeper.

"It was a good play on Ketcham's part," said Sawyer coach Tony Elia. "Both teams played well pretty much the whole game. There was good passing, and most of the play came in the midfield area."

The Sawyers now 1-3 in the league, had scoring opportunities but failed to capitalize. Elia was not discouraged.

"I'm happy with the team. We're giving our best. We could just as easily won our last two games—we lost to John Jay in the last few seconds. We're just young and trying to build."

Saugerties faces Roosevelt next week in quest of its second win of the year.

That Roosevelt team, one of the better clubs in the league (it is defending champ), gave KHS a tough time, sending the Tigers to their third straight loss. "We had some problems with our midfield play," said Kingston coach Ron Chaison. "You can't build an attack or counter an attack unless you can control the midfield. I expect I will be making some changes there in terms of the system and our personnel."

Norm Licos scored all three Roosevelt goals. Several other forays by the Presidents were repelled by the talented young KHS goalies Rich Colvin and Malcolm Schick. Also playing well for the Tigers were left wing Fred Horowitz, who was making his first start of the year, and solid sweeper Dan Perkins.

KHS hosts Spackenkill Thursday.

SAA's Soccer League Opens With Twinbill

SAUGERTIES

Twice delayed by torrential rains, the Saugerties Athletic Association's soccer league is finally under way.

In opening action, Greimel Enterprises edged Hackett's 1-0 and West Penn edged the Ravens, 2-1. Three of the four squads in the doubleheader are new entries in the seven-team circuit, while the Ravens are the defending champions and have already done what they didn't do all last season—lose! The Ravens were 7-0-1 in 1974.

Brian Lackemann booted in the lone goal of the game at 14:53 of the second half to give Greimel's their victory. West Penn put the first goal on the scoreboard when Gary Van Allen scored at 15:28 of the first half.

The Ravens' Dave Holmquist knotted the score at 0:30 of the second half, but West Penn regained the lead for keeps with a goal by Evan Griffen at 15:28.

The league uses 7-man teams, 30-minute halves, on a 75x40 yard field and will play a 10-game pennant race, with all squads then taking part in a playoff round robin.

The regular week's competition has a Sunday afternoon twinbill and doubleheaders each Monday and Wednesday evening under the softball lights at Cantine Memorial Field.

The other teams in the league are A.P.O.M., Johnny-on-the-Spot and Terp's Toes.

Players of the Week

The local high school Players of the Week as selected by the Daily Freeman sports department:

Offense

DAVE HILLRIEGEL, PINE BUSH RUNNING BACK, who scored two touchdowns to bring his season total to five, moving him into a tie for the UCAL scoring lead, as Pine Bush beat Marlboro.

Defense

JOHN RAFFALDI, ONTEORA, who anchored a strong defensive effort with 10 tackles as the Indians shut out New Paltz.

Siena Wins Triangular

VOORHEESVILLE Siena College defeated Albany State and New Paltz State in a triangular golf match over the tough, demanding Albany Country Club layout.

The Indians had 320 strokes, with Albany carding 340 and New Paltz 378. Siena also had the two low medalists in Cunningham with 77 and Kelly with 79. They were the only two players to break 80.

New Paltz's best score was a 95 by Harry Cohen. "They just had too much experience for us," said Hawk coach William T. (Bill) Odeneal. "The course played long from the recent rains and the huge greens gave everybody trouble."

Bandit CD Places First

NEW PALTZ Joyce Rockwell and Bandit CD, a black and white papillon, took high in trial (regular classes) and also a first place in the Open obedience class at the Shawangunk Kennel Club Breed and Obedience Fun Match at the Ulster County Fairgrounds, scoring 197/200.

There will be many special awards in addition to prizes for the top five placings in each class. This year the entries will be limited to 200 dogs.

Friday is the last registration day for the local Punt, Pass, and Kick competition, says Ralph Zimmerman of the co-sponsoring Saugerties Jaycees. The event is scheduled for Saturday at Canine Field.

Youngsters aged eight through 13 may compete. Contestants should go to Johnson Ford in Kingston, accompanied by a parent or guardian, to fill out the PP&K registration form. There is no entry fee.

Trophies will be awarded for the first three places in each of six age groups. The local winners will advance to the Zone competition. The ultimate goal is the national final to be held at Super Bowl X in Miami next January.

All entrants receive a PP&K Title Book which contains pointers from pros Ray Guy, Ken Anderson, and Chester Marcol on punting, passing, and kicking. Complete PP&K rules and suggested conditioning exercises are also included.

This is the 15th anniversary for PP&K which is sponsored by the Ford dealers and the National Football League.

It's Different With Patriots

HEMPSTEAD, N.Y. (UPI) — You'd think that after watching his runners pound out 291 yards against Kansas City's three-man line, New York Jets Coach Charley Winner would be looking forward to taking on New England's three-man front Sunday.

"They're the same basic alignments but it's the people who make them different," said Winner after running his club through an unusually-long two-hour Tuesday drill. "Kansas City had big strong people up front in their three-man line. They try to overpower you. New England's three men are all quick. You don't know where they're coming from or where they're going to be and it's tough to put a good block on them."

The Jets gained their victory in two games last Sunday, 30-24 over Kansas City as John Higgins ran for 145 yards and Carl Garrett tacked on 135 more. But Tuesday, a day usually reserved for loosening up, Higgins watched from the sidelines and Garrett was not at practice.

"Carl called me Monday and said he had a court case in Chicago and hoped to be in early this morning," Winner said Tuesday. "Then he called and said he was still tied up and would try to make it in Wednesday."

Riggins has a sore leg but it is described by the Jets as very minor.

"I spent yesterday in Kansas City and it was so sore I could hardly walk," said Riggins, the No. 2 rusher in the American Conference behind Buffalo's O.J. Simpson. "I think it should be alright by the end of the week."

Winner sneezed any talk of Garrett doing one of his disappearing acts that caused him problems in New England and led to his trade to Chicago two years ago.

"I'm not concerned about what happened in the past," Winner said. "I'm concerned with right now. I don't care what happened and what he did when he was with New England. He called me yesterday and he called me today to keep me abreast of the situation. It's not like we don't know where he is. He's done everything we've asked of him since he's been here and we're extremely pleased with him."

"Carl is happy with us and we're happy with him and that's the way we want it to stay. He's added another dimension to our running game."

Garrett, who made his first start for the Jets last Sunday, ranks No. 4 in the AFC in rushing.

Winner said he hopes the Jets will cut down on the mental mistakes which have plagued them in the first two weeks on the season.

Marist Names Frank Davis

POUGHKEEPSIE Former New Paltz High School and Oakwood School basketball coach Frank Davis has been named assistant coach at Marist College, Athletic Director Howard Goldman has announced.

Davis, who will replace the current Marist JV coach Bob Hildreth, says his new job is "a definite step up because of the winning tradition and program" at Marist. "I always look forward to moving up so this position will be doubly challenging."

"We are glad to have someone with such a varied background in basketball assisting us this year," said head coach Ron Petro. "Frank should provide much input on new ideas for our program as well as aiding us in our local player recruitment."

A three-letter winner at Bluefield College in West Virginia, Davis won All-Conference honors in football and basketball. He was also a member of the basketball team. He presently teaches social studies at New Paltz High School where he was the long-time basketball coach until the end of the 1973-74 season. Last year he coached at Oakwood School in Poughkeepsie.

Davis and his wife, Mildred, reside in New Paltz with their son, Charles.

State Pushes Sales of Its Industry's Wares

ALBANY New York State sought purchasers for its manufactured products during a recent five-day trade mission to West Berlin. Acting State Commerce Commissioner Vito J. Castellano announced today.

Hans Mueller, a department international trade consultant, met with potential buyers and agents in the offices of the American Chamber of Commerce in Germany to acquaint them with the wide variety of "Made in New York State" products available to them.

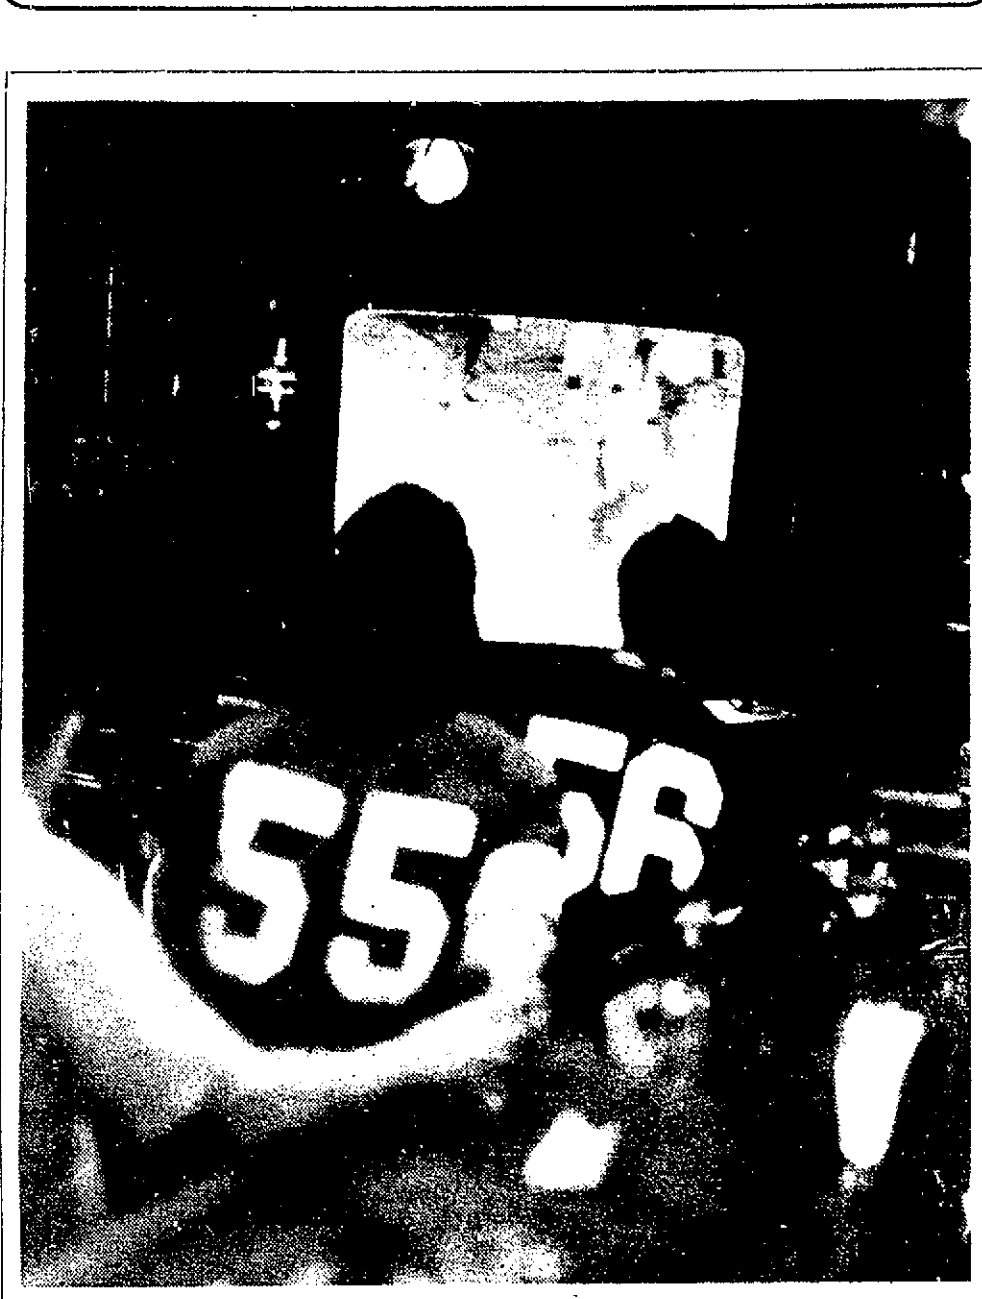

Mueller's visit coincided with the opening of the 13th Overseas Import Fair that attracted many European buyers and agents to West Berlin.

The New York representative acquainted businessmen with the state's free computerized service which enables overseas buyers to match their needs with New York State manufacturers. Sales literature of New York State manufacturers interested in the German market was presented to visiting businessmen.

The department had sent advance notice of the mission to 700 German firms that have inquired about New York State products, and newspaper advertisements and articles alerted German businessmen to Mueller's visit.

During the latter part of July, a Division of International Commerce representative visited the State of Israel to promote the sale of New York State products. Requests for products needed by Israeli firms are being circulated in the State Commerce Department's Foreign Trade Opportunities bulletins which are received by more than 10,000 New York suppliers.

'Little Guys' Unhappy

NEW YORK CITY The government's much-ballyhooed promise to protect the interests of the little guy is not all it's cracked up to be, according to most Americans, a nationwide attitude survey indicates.

The survey, conducted for Citicorp and its principal subsidiary, First National City Bank, showed that better than 70 percent of 1,417 respondents disagreed with the idea that government agencies and their regulations protect the ordinary citizen. Only 24 percent said they felt government really acted in the best interests of the little guy.

Not only do Americans think government agencies are lacking in this regard but 78 percent feel that when a consumer does present a problem or complaint to a government office, he will usually get the shuffling treatment — referred on to somebody else and then on and on.

At the root of the problem, Americans think, is too much bureaucracy. While it's not surprising that people are aware of the voluminous red tape generated by government agencies and large corporations, the survey showed that 77 percent of the respondents think bureaucracy is getting worse not only in government but in industry and business as well.

LWV Plans

The Kingston Chapter of the League of Women Voters will jointly sponsor a Candidates Night at Temple Emanuel Oct. 15 beginning at 8 p.m. Finalizing plans for the event are (L) Mary Gellhaus, publicity chairman for the American Association of University Women; Renee Sachs, second vice president of the League of Women Voters; Cay Conway, moderator and Harold Breuer, president of the Temple Brotherhood. Candidates will include all those for mayor of Kingston, alderman-at-large, county clerk, and surrogate judge. The public is invited. — (Freeman photo)

County LWV Backs ERA Amendment

KINGSTON Ulster County members of the League of Women Voters have joined Leaguers across New York State in the campaign for the adoption of the State Equal Rights Amendment. The Mid-Ulster County and the Saugerties Leagues have established speakers' bureaus to prevent the League's position on the ERA.

While the federal Equal Rights Amendment still is awaiting ratification by four more states, the voters of New York State will have an opportunity on Nov. 4 to adopt an ERA to the State Constitution. The proposed State ERA will be one of several amendments facing the voter this year. It states: "Equality of rights under the law shall not be denied or abridged by the state of New York or any sub-division thereof on account of sex."

If approved by the voters, the State ERA would make clear that New York State laws may not contain discrimination based solely on a person's sex. The ERA deals only with equality of opportunity and protection under the law. It will affect only areas covered by law and will not impinge on private relationships. It is simply a brief statement of principle that the courts would take into account when determining the constitutionality of laws and the Legislature would take into account when making laws. Both the courts and the Legislature would be guided by the underlying principle that, though many kinds of individual differences exist among people, that of sex could no longer be used arbitrarily to deny or abridge equal treatment under law.

Because of the existence of some very sound state and federal legislation prohibiting sex discrimination in such areas as employment, education and extension of credit, the ERA would cause few changes in state laws. The problem is that existing legislation easily can be repealed or eroded during any legislative session. Adoption of the ERA would provide the constitutional guarantee needed to protect established gains in equal rights and to expand them to new areas still untouched by corrective legislation, thus insuring equal treatment under law for both men and women, a spokesperson said.

The 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution does contain an equal protection clause. However, this amendment has not been effective in cases where sexual discrimination is claimed, for the courts have never defined what criteria should be applied to determine the legality of laws which discriminate on the basis of sex. Thus, "equal protection of the laws" does not always provide equal protection for all persons. Supporters of the State ERA, including such diverse organizations as the ALP-CIO, AAUW, Church Women United, Business and Professional Women, Council of Churches, and the League of Women Voters, point out that an Equal Rights Amendment would provide the clarification necessary to determine once and for all whether discrimination based on sex is constitutional.

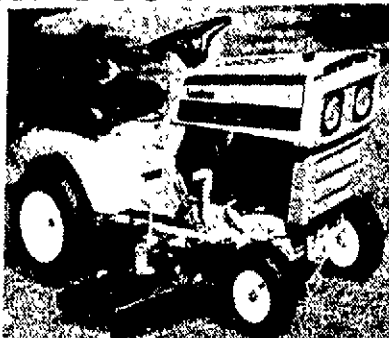

"If the ERA is approved by voters it will become effective on Jan. 1, 1976. On that day, New York State would join the fifteen other states of this country which already have state Equal Rights Amendments. ERA supporters believe that, in providing equal treatment for both sexes under the law, voters will be completing what is now an incomplete Bill of Rights. What better way could New York State begin its celebration of our nation's bicentennial year?" ask Dede Fuller and Erna Moss, ERA chairwomen for the Saugerties and the Mid-Ulster Leagues.

County to Vote on Dependent Children Aid

By Lynn Mulvaney

KINGSTON Not unexpectedly, the Ulster County Legislature will vote Tuesday, Oct. 7 on a $200,000 appropriation to meet the welfare cost of aid to dependent children for the balance of the year.

The board delayed action on the funding earlier this month because some aid to dependent children funds remained in the budget and were expected to last through October.

But, if the county doesn't act on the matter at its October meeting, action at a later date would come too late.

And as Social Services Commissioner Bernhardt S. Kramer has said, if authorization for the funds is not given, the county will be in default and would not qualify for state funds under social services law.

At the Sept. 16 meeting of the legislature, the board approved an additional $737,500 to meet Medicaid payments but delayed action on aid to dependent children.

Although the majority of legislators voted for the additional funding, most did it under protest. The $737,500 represented the county's share of a $3.5 million welfare deficit. Had they not voted in favor, the county would have been burdened with the entire $3.5 million.

Many legislators have expressed interest in seeing the social services law changed and recently discussed possible solutions with state and federal representatives at an executive session of the board.

Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. (R-25th Dist.) suggested that the various counties in the state have regional meetings concerning welfare problems and that Ulster County set up a committee to meet with the New York State congressional delegation to present views regarding welfare reform.

State Sen. Edwyn E. Mason (R-48th Dist.) advised that state social services mandates for new programs should not be implemented during the middle of the budget year but rather on Jan. 1 so that local welfare budgets could be prepared to include any state mandated programs. This message should be given to state and federal legislators, he said.

Ulster County Legislature passed a resolution to that effect about a year ago, according to Majority Leader Ernest J. Gardner (R-Dist. 5). Assemblyman Maurice Hinchey (D-101st Dist.) suggested that the federal government take over all welfare programs and that Ulster County take over the home relief program from the various townships of the county.

Zoning Ordinance Changes Recommended in Hurley

By Carl Graham

HURLEY A series of recommendations for changes in the Town of Hurley zoning ordinance would have the greatest impact on residential areas of the town if adopted.

The town planning board, which prepared the changes in conjunction with Frederick P. Clark Associates, a professional planning firm, described their recommendations Tuesday night at a public informational meeting in the Hurley Elementary School.

The major change would divide the present one-acre residential zone that covers about 85 percent of the town into three separate categories with one-acre, two-acre and three-acre minimum lot sizes. Mobile homes would be permitted in all three areas on individual lots if they met other requirements for these areas.

Other important changes make new provisions for mobile home parks and campsites, liberalize restrictions on home occupations, require fencing of swimming pools and ponds, and require site plan approval by the planning board for anything other than one or two family dwellings or agricultural uses.

Wilbur Peters, who headed the planning board committee that drew up the changes, explained the history of the present zoning ordinance, adopted in 1959. Peters said the committee had been working with planners since January to draw up the changes.

"The planning board and town board felt they wanted the zoning ordinance to retain the residential atmosphere of the town," Peters said. "The basic philosophy of the present ordinance is unchanged."

Planning consultant Fred Weidle said that the town, with a 1970 population of 6,000, could possibly grow to 70,000 under the present ordinance. The proposed changes would reduce that potential to about 45,000, although rugged terrain, state-owned land, a flood plain, road and soil conditions work against heavy development, he noted.

"The potential for development in most of the town can be summed up in one word—lousy," Weidle told the audience.

He distributed a map showing the flood plain along the Esopus Creek zoned for one-acre minimums, with a large three-acre tract extending northwest from Hurley Mountain Road, a two acre zone abutting it, and another three-acre zone along the south and north shores of the Ashokan Reservoir.

The only change in commercial zoning would change the site of the Numrich Arms plant in West Hurley, inadvertently zoned residential in 1959, to a business classification.

Charter Revision Meeting

KINGSTON The Kingston Charter Revision Commission will hold a public information meeting at the cafeteria of Kingston High School on Oct. 2 beginning at 7:30 p.m.

The commission has also scheduled (tentatively) a one-hour radio program on Station WGHQ for 10 a.m. on Oct. 4.

The commission's public information committee has been meeting regularly with various groups including volunteer and professional firemen (separately), WHITA, the Chamber of Commerce Executive Board, the Martin Luther King Senior Citizen Club and St. Joseph's Senior Citizen Club.

The proposed charter, on the ballot this fall, mandates centralized purchasing for all departments which is expected to result in savings to the taxpayer by volume purchasing, state bid pricing, etc. The charter further provides for a unified system of building, property and motor equipment maintenance which is expected to result in a more effective maintenance program by utilizing and sharing facilities and services among departments, and eliminating wasteful duplicate expenses for maintenance equipment.

Auto-Free Zones Advocated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — "Auto-free zones" are needed in America's big cities — to reduce congestion, pollution and energy consumption, Federal Highway Administrator Norbert Tiemann says.

Government planners expect to test the concept with federally funded, demonstration programs involving auto-free zones in about six cities next year, Tiemann said Monday.

The Environmental Protection Agency, meanwhile, said mileage performance by new cars improved to an average 17.6 miles per gallon compared to 15.6 m.p.g. in the 1975 model year.

The EPA said annual fuel economy tests showed the new Chevrolet Chevette, Datsun B-210 and Subaru all averaged 33 m.p.g. to rate on top of other 1976 model cars.

"I personally feel the time is not far off when we will have to bite the bullet and restrict private automobiles in the central business district, or at least part of it, in many of our cities," Tiemann told the International Bridge, Tunnel and Turnpike Assoc. in Paris. His remarks were released in Washington.

"We simply cannot afford the one-car, one-occupant concept any longer" because of the energy crisis, congestion and pollution in large cities, he said.

While conceding the auto-free zones will be "unpopular politically" because businessmen fear they would keep shoppers away, Tiemann said they still are "an idea whose time must come soon."

He said FHA planners were involved in a one-year study on feasibility of such zones. Later, several cities will be chosen for demonstration projects.

Vehicles such as jitneys or minibuses may be allowed in the auto-free zones, Tiemann said. An Urban Planning Division official said trucks making deliveries and some autos — perhaps paying fees — would be permitted.

The EPA mileage guide said the least economical American car tested was an eight-cylinder Plymouth Gran Fury Wagon with an automatic transmission. It averaged 12 m.p.g.

EPA Administrator Russell E. Train said mileage figures were a "dramatic indication" of a shift in production to car models which are easy on gas. Automakers have gone more than half way since 1974 in meeting the President's goal of a 40 percent improvement in fuel economy by 1980, he said.

Top Rank

Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Russell Train announces that the new Chevrolet Chevette at 33 miles per gallon became the first American-produced car to win a top ranking in the EPA's annual fuel economy tests. Train said the industry seems to be paying attention to consumer demand for economical cars. At left is Federal Energy chief Frank Zarb. (UPI)

Sporty Tax Shelter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Question: What does Joe Namath have in common with a cow grazing in Kansas?

Answer: They both may be tax shelters for their owners.

The House Ways and Means Committee, which is writing a major tax revision bill, already has voted to curb tax shelters in cattle breeding and other farm-related investments by outsiders.

Now the committee is zeroing in on a potentially lucrative tax shelter for a small number of individuals: the buying and selling of sports team franchises and player contracts.

These shelters, according to committee staff, can combine to transform a money-losing team into a very profitable one if the owners have outside incomes that put them into a high tax bracket.

While no one on the committee has mentioned either Namath or the New York Jets in connection with shelters, it is apparent that many owners of football, baseball, basketball and hockey teams have taken advantage of the shelter provided by the tax treatment of sports franchises.

The shelter is brought about by treating player contracts as assets to be depreciated just like a piece of equipment bought by a steel mill or other business. A second and related shelter comes about through the capital gains tax treatment afforded the sale of franchises.

Here is an example: Suppose a partnership purchases a sports franchise for $10 million. The buyer arbitrarily says most of the purchase price was for player contracts, which can be depreciated for tax purposes. But the seller arbitrarily says most of the price was for the franchise, which gets capital gains tax treatment.

Thus each gets the best of both tax worlds.

"In the first year, suppose the net income from the team is $450,000. However, the new owners charge off $1.6 million to depreciation on their players, leaving a paper loss of $1.2 million despite the actual profit of $450,000.

Suppose there are four partners, one of whom has a taxable income from outside sources of $500,000. Normally his tax would be $321,000, but using his share of the paper loss his tax would be only $111,000, a saving of $210,000. Adding in his share of the actual profit, he gains $322,500.

Fringe Benefits Survey

ALBANY

Sick leave ranging from 10 to 18 days has been reported in survey of fringe benefits of county employees throughout New York State. The survey was prepared by the research office of the Public Employment Relations Board.

In Ulster County, employees are granted one sick day per month or 12 a year and may accumulate up to 165 days.

The survey provides data on 45 counties from contracts covering 1975-1977 that have been filed with PERB. It updates and combines a series of fringe benefit reports issued separately in previous years for general county employees, employees of sheriffs' departments and employees of hospitals and institutions.

In addition to sick leave information, the report includes data on workweek, overtime, holidays, vacation, personal and bereavement leave, retirement, health insurance, shift differentials, tuition assistance, uniform policy, tenure provisions, union leave, grievance procedures and mileage allowance.

More Bad NYC News As Levitt Calls a Halt

ALBANY (UPI) — Gov. Hugh L. Carey would be carrying more bad news today as he went to Washington to plead again for federal help to save New York City from default.

State Comptroller Arthur Levitt Tuesday refused to relent in his opposition to investing additional state employee pension funds in a plan to bail out the city.

Levitt's decision meant that Carey's $2.3 billion plan to carry the city through December would be minus $125 million, and the deadline for new action to handle the city's woes would be that much closer.

Carey said his latest trip to Washington was "to review the picture from the national viewpoint — what impact the New York situation is having as far away as California."

He said he would meet with New York congressmen and other lawmakers "in a position of authority in committees."

The State Court of Appeals ruled Monday that Levitt could not be compelled to invest the state pension funds he oversees. His continued resistance to making the investments on his own meant that a day of reckoning for the city might come earlier than expected.

The ruling came on the appeals of the Police Conference and the Civil Service Employees Association that such a mandate was unconstitutional since it interfered with Levitt's responsibility to wisely invest pension funds.

Levitt met for more than two hours with Carey at the governor's second floor Capitol office to discuss alternative sources of funds.

Levitt has been careful to point out that he did not question the merits, or the safety of securities issued by the Municipal Assistance Corp., a public benefit corporation created by the legislature to float long-term borrowing for the city.

But, Levitt stated that the investment portfolio of the funds already had $25 million in MAC bonds "and my decision is that this meets the quality of diversity" he wants to maintain in the portfolio.

Wheat-for-Oil Deal Appears Close

MOSCOW (UPI) — Talks between the United States and the Soviet Union on a long term grain agreement today appeared to be nearing an end, possibly with a wheat-for-oil deal.

Undersecretary of State for Economic Affairs Charles A. Robinson met for a second time today with Soviet Foreign Trade Minister Nikolai S. Patolichev and a high American official said "all signs look positive" for final agreement this week.

Robinson flew to Moscow Tuesday, accompanied by a high-level delegation and immediately met with Patolichev and U.S. Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel for almost four hours.

Last month the same trio conferred in Moscow for 13 hours before the American delegation returned to Washington with Soviet acceptance "in principle" of the long-term idea.

Although U.S. spokesmen refused to discuss a possible "bushels for barrels" oil deal, the presence of energy expert Joseph Bell of the Federal Energy Administration tended to support reports that it was being seriously considered.

Experts in Washington believe the Soviet Union has a surplus of oil it might be willing to swap for grain.

So far this year, the Soviet government has bought 10 million tons of American grain to supplement its poor harvest, which western agriculture experts say is likely to fall 40 million tons short of its 215million ton goal because of bad weather.

Leukemia Society Campaign

LAKE KATRINE
Alexander J. Capasso of Lake Katrine has been named chairman for the Leukemia Society's annual residential campaign in Ulster County.

"More than 800 concerned volunteers will call on their neighbors from Oct. 1 to 15 asking them for their contributions," Capasso said. "Funds raised will also help broaden the society's patient-aid assistance in Ulster County."

Funds raised will support the Leukemia Society's nationwide research endeavors by funding scientific investigators who are searching for a cure for leukemia.

Capasso is vice president of the First National Bank of Highland. He has been a Leukemia Society volunteer for several years, having served as treasurer and president, and presently is a member of the Upstate New York Chapter's Board of Trustees.

The Leukemia Society of America Inc. is a national voluntary health agency dedicated solely to seeking the control and eventual eradication of leukemia and allied illnesses—the lymphomas and Hodgkin's Disease. Since its founding, the society has awarded more than $9 million in research grants.

The society supports a three-pronged program of research, patient aid and public and professional education. Its local and national programs are supported by contributions from the community at large—individuals, commerce and industry, unions and foundations, bequests and memorials.

Hoffa Family's Reward Sparks Grisly Search

PONTIAC, Mich. (UPI) — Amateur sleuths, armed with shovels and lured by the promise of a $200,000 reward, descended on a nearby field Tuesday to search for the grave of James R. Hoffa.

The reward, offered by the family of the missing former Teamsters Union president, brought scores of searchers to a 29-acre site northwest of Detroit, identified by an underworld informant as the place where Hoffa was buried.

Two Senate subcommittee investigators, who got the original tip from the unidentified informant, sat in a hotel room Tuesday awaiting further information.

The original tip was deemed solid by state officials and touched off two days of digging by state police, who failed to turn up a trace of the former Teamsters boss.

Police dug at three different locations Tuesday, at least one time at the prompting of an amateur searcher.

Kitt Knisley, 27, walked over the site until he found something he thought resembled a grave. He jumped on his motorcycle and reported it to Waterford Township police.

Detective Merle Finkle arrived 15 minutes later with a shovel, turned over a few spadefuls of dirt and said, "Ground moles." He soon left. "Look, there's loose dirt here," said Chester Urbanek, a middle-aged mortgage broker. "Well," said his wife, "if you think this is it, go put on your old shoes and start digging." Urbanek stripped off his jacket. Then, without removing his white shirt, tie, business trousers, cuff links or two diamond rings, he started digging. An hour later, he was tired, dirty, and, like the others, emptyhanded.

45 Burn to Death In a Mexican Bus

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Police reported today that 45 persons burned to death in the collision of a jammed bus and a trailer truck jack-knifed across a mountain highway Tuesday.

Police said the death toll could go as high as 60. The 40-mile stretch of highway which winds through the mountains from Mexico City to Toluca — capital of Mexico State — is known as Mexico's "death road" and is considered one of the nation's most dangerous.

The truck smashed the steel medial barrier as it sped down a steep hill, jack-knifed and struck the bus head on, which burst into flames. About 80 passengers were on board.

Sotero Pastrana, 30, the bus driver, ran from the wreckage, his clothing aflame but collapsed and died nearby, a police spokesman said.

"The screaming passengers tried desperately to get out of the bus, but the flames grew so fast, many couldn't get out in time," the spokesman said.

Fifteen Red Cross ambulances hauled the dead and injured in relays to Mexico City, 25 miles to the east, and to Toluca.

Your Astrograph

For Thursday, Oct. 2
ARIES (March 21-April 19) You're a good worker today, but you won't be as detail-conscious as you should be.
TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You're friendly and outgoing, but you could make some remarks in just today that a sensitive friend will misinterpret. Be careful.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your mate is not likely to share your enthusiasm about projects around the home today. Be prepared to tackle them alone.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Lighter interests will command the greater part of your time today. Excuses will be found for shirking responsibilities.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You'll be a pennywise shopper today concerning domestic needs, but you'll pamper an extravagant whim in another area.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll be aware of opportunity about you today. Strong self-doubts will also be present. They may gain the upper hand.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you handle business matters early, they should come off to your advantage. Delaying things lessens your prospects.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Guard against your tendencies to buy something you have no real need for, though you'll feel it's a bargain.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Spur-of-the-moment decisions will assist you in achieving your aims today. If you deliberate too long, you're not likely to act.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Make it a point today to be as frank and honest as possible with everyone. Holding back information will work against you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This can be a profitable day if you're singular about your goals. Keep your priorities in order.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You will be tempted today to back out of an earlier impulsive promise. If you do, it will cause you remorse.

Unusual chances for material gain will pop up unexpectedly for you this coming year. Investigate carefully all propositions, even though they may seem a bit far out. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Minimum Means Game

By Oswald & James Jacoby
 Six Points is the bare minimum for a normal response to a one bid in a suit and seven points the normal minimum. Thus when your partner opens the bidding, the rule of the ace and the king tells you that with 10 points (7 plus 3 for a king), you should consider inviting game even if partner shows he has opened a minimum-type hand. With 11 points (7 plus 4 for an ace), you should make some game try. While with 14 (7 plus 7 for an ace and a king), you should bid a game.

Actually, we will bid game with 13 points or an opening bid on the theory that you should not want for sure things.

North bids two no trump to invite game with his 12 points and South accepts the invitation with his 13 points. His hand is minimum but not too minimum.

South wins the first trick with his king of spades over East's jack. He proceeds to knock out the ace of diamonds next and with everything behaving nicely will wind up making four or even five no trump.

$25,000 Offer To Kill Ford Is Revealed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Threats against President Ford's life since the recent assassination attempts have tripled, including one from a mentally troubled man who offered an undercover agent $25,000 to kill Ford, government officials have disclosed.

In testimony Tuesday before a Senate appropriations subcommittee reviewing protection for the President, Treasury Secretary William Simon said 320 threats were made against Ford during the first 20 days of September. He said such threats had averaged 100 to 110 during a similar period before the two assassination attempts in California.

He blamed the increase on massive publicity. "All this publicity seems to invite these deranged human beings to come out," Simon said. "When these people are glamorized on the front pages of our national magazines, I think this has to be thought of as doing great harm."

Director Rex Davis of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms revealed one threat involving an offer of "$25,000, a .357 magnum and a hiding place" to an undercover ATF agent in Belleville, Ill., if he would kill the President.

Davis said Roger Bates, 37, a former mental patient, had a "chance encounter" with the ATF undercover agent in a Belleville bar on Sept. 10. Bates, described by the Secret Service as a "chronic alcoholic," offered a $1,000 down payment for killing Ford, with $24,000 to be paid upon completion of the "hit," Davis said.

Davis said it was "doubtful" Bates had the financial ability to follow through, but the information was relayed to the Secret Service, and Bates was arrested the following day. Although charged with making a threat against the President, Bates was not prosecuted when he agreed to recommit himself to a mental institution.

In other developments, — Ford asked Congress for an additional $11 million for the next fiscal year to hire 150 more Secret Service agents, add new security gates at the White House and to support increased travel costs for his bodyguards.

— Secret Service Director H. Stuart Knight and his assistant, James T. Burke, said they "agree wholeheartedly" with the decision of two special agents not to place Sara Jane Moore under protective surveillance following an interview Sept. 21 — the night before she allegedly fired a shot that missed President Ford. They said Miss Moore said she had no interest in the President and her release was partially the result of her previous work as a law enforcement informant. However, Knight conceded the Secret Service interview "might have been the triggering factor" that caused her to shoot at Ford.

— Two Democratic presidential contenders, Alabama Gov. George Wallace and Rep. Morris Udall, Ariz., so far have accepted a government offer of Secret Service protection. Among several others offered the same protection, former North Carolina Gov. Terry Sanford said it would be "an undue burden on the taxpayers," and Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas said he hadn't made up his mind.

Hirohito Honors Gen. MacArthur

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. (UPI) — Emperor Hirohito, on his first trip to the United States, made a point of honoring the memory of the American general who accepted the surrender of Japan in 1945 and then helped rebuild modern Japan.

The only Japanese monarch ever to make a state visit to the United States ordered a wreath of white mums and red carnations placed on his behalf at the MacArthur Memorial in nearby Norfolk.

Japanese officials said his decision Tuesday to honor the late Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the commander of allied occupying forces who kept Hirohito on the throne after Japan's World War II defeat, was an impromptu one. Diplomatic sources said the emperor could not place the wreath personally because of possible political repercussions at home.

Hirohito and Empress Nagako also will receive MacArthur's widow when they visit New York Sunday.

They planned to spend today touring some of the relics of colonial America, including the governor's palace and the House of Burgesses dating from the late 1700s.

Stock Market Suffers A Slump

NEW YORK (UPI) — Plagued by rising interest rates and the threat of inflation, the stock market suffered its first quarterly loss in a year during the three months that ended Tuesday.

The loss followed a near-record gain during the first half of this year.

July and August also resulted in a $62 billion decrease in the value of all stocks on the New York Stock Exchange. Figures for September were not yet available.

There was a considerable slowdown in trade, dismaying many brokerages who experienced record profits in the first six months.

The Dow Jones industrial average lost 85.11 points in the third quarter to 793.88, or 9.06 percent. It marked its first quarterly loss since falling a whopping 194.54 points, or 24.24 percent, in the third quarter of 1974, when the economy was in the worst recession since World War II and the Watergate scandal was at its height.

If it is true the market foreshadows the economy by six to eight months, as many analysts claim, the recovery now under way could be erratic.

During the first half — the best since 1933 — the Dow average climbed 262.75 points, or 42.64 percent. At that point, the closely watched blue-chip average had climbed 301.39 points from its 1974 low of 577.60 set Dec. 6.

Third quarter volume fell to an average of 15.6 million shares daily from the 21.30 million daily during the first six months of the year. This indicated that although averages fell, many investors held onto their stocks.

Newton Zinder, vice president of E.F. Hutton & Co., said the "market will reflect a much better business picture that's developing." He felt the thirdquarter setback in some ways was normal in light of the rapid rise in the first half.

When the third quarter began, First National City

Bank had a prime rate of 7 percent. Now it stands at 8 percent and one bank economist predicted the rate would hit 9 1/2 percent by mid-1976.

Several Ominous Signs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Even as the recession is coming to an end, Congress' Joint Economic Committee today foresaw "ominous signs on the horizon that a new recession could be in the making" and called for a big tax cut to head it off.

In its annual midyear review of the economy, the committee not only advocated continuation of the $25 billion worth of personal and business tax cuts enacted last March to stimulate the economy, but proposed an additional cut of $8 billion to $10 billion for businesses and their employees.

Its recommendation came as President Ford prepared to decide this weekend whether to ask Congress to extend the 1975 cuts for another year. Treasury Secretary William E. Simon opposes an extension as potentially inflationary, but Labor Secretary John T. Dunlop told Congress he favored making the tax cut permanent "to maintain demand and increase employment."

"There are ominous signs on the horizon that a new recession could be in the making for late next year or early in 1977," the report said. "Swift and decisive actions are required both to sustain the recovery through 1976 and to cope with continuing inflationary pressures."

Republicans on the committee expressed misgivings about the Democratic majority's proposal.

"Whether the quickening recovery will falter in midstream is a legitimate concern," the Republicans said, "but the danger of excessive stimulation and the consequent boom-and-bust cycle is grim enough to warrant extreme caution in considering supplementary economic programs."

London Siege . . . No Change

LONDON (UPI) — Three gunmen holding six hostages in a London restaurant are adamant — the siege goes on until police give them a getaway plane.

Scotland Yard detectives are just as determined — there won't be any deal, no matter how long it takes.

The standoff went into the fourth day today with gunmen and hostages barricaded in the basement of the Spaghetti House restaurant in London's fashionable Knightsbridge section.

"They are going nowhere," London Police Commissioner Sir Robert Mark said of the gunmen. "Our patience is limitless. Our objective is to get the hostages out unharmed, and to bring these gunmen out under arrest."

Mark refused an offer by Italian Consul General Mario Manta to take the place of an ailing hostage. All the captives are Italian citizens employed by the restaurant chain.

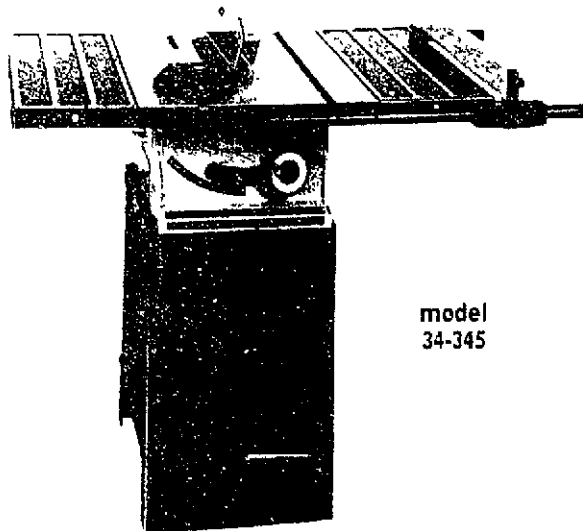

"The present hostages are in the position they now are in as the result of criminal violence," Mark said. "It is my object to ensure that they will not involve someone else."

The three gunmen, who claim to belong to a group called the Black Liberation Front, seized the hostages Sunday after a botched robbery attempt.
